NATIONAL ANTHEM—Flag Day ceremonies at the BPO Elks Lodge Friday night opened with group singing of the National Anthem led by the Elks' Singers. The impressive ceremony, under the direction of the Elks and Bill Bennett, exhalted ruler, included participation by civic and fraternal groups in the city. Bill Crouch of Sertoma gave a prayer, Jim Shea of Kiwanis presented a history of the flag, Bob Hempker of VFW led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance, Paul Schillinger of the American Legion gave the response, and a flag burning was conducted by members of the American Legion, VFW, and Lions. Color Guard for the service were representatives of the VFW and American Legion and Taps was played by Mark Lackey.

Meetings Linked To Dean Immunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meetings between President Nixon and then White House counsel John W. Dean III in February 1973 may have been aimed at giving Dean an excuse to claim executive privilege, according to a House Judiciary Committee staff memo quoted in today's Los Angeles Times.

According to the memorandum, grand jury testimony indicates that, prior to that time, Dean had been concerned that he could not make such a claim if called to testify before the Senate Watergate committee, the newspaper said.

However, the Times noted that a cover letter to the May 24 memo from sistently asserted that onsite inspections are necessary to prevent cheating, but the Soviets have argued that underground blasts can be detected electronically and have rejected on-site checks.

"We are ready to reach an agreement with the United States right now on the limitation of underground nuclear tests up to their full termination according to a coordinated timetable," Brezhnev said in a final campaign address before Sunday's elections to the Supreme Soviet.

While the outcome of such elections is predetermined, the campaign speeches are often used as a vehicle for major policy statements.

Brezhnev's declaration, coming less than two weeks before the start of President Nixon's visit here, indicated the Soviets hope that an agreement could be signed during the summit.

American technical experts have been in Moscow for two weeks exploring ways to broaden the 1963 test ban treaty, which prohibits atmospheric and undersea tests but makes no provisions for underground test.

Brezhnev's address coincided with an announcement that Nixon will attend a North Atlantic Treaty Organization summit in Brussels on June 26, the day before he departs for Moscow.

Brezhnev strongly defended Nixon's visit against "pessimistic estimations" in the foreign press. "Of course, nobody is going to solve in a rush questions which have not yet matured. But it is impossible, comrades, to make no headway."

He hailed the agreement to limit strategic arms signed by the United States and the Soviet Union in 1972, but he added: "We urge that the Soviet Union and the United States by mutual accord show the maximum restraint in further development of their armaments."

He attacked "those circles in the United States" which he said try to pin the escalation of the arms race on the Soviet Union.

committee staff lawyer William P. Dixon said: "This memo is interpretative on my part and the facts presented herein may be interpreted differently by others."

The memo mentions grand jury testimony and other evidence to support a theory that Nixon participated in the Watergate cover-up, the Times says.

The Times quotes the memo as saying that Nixon didn't start meeting with Dean until Dean indicated fear that he would be called before the committee but wouldn't be able to claim executive privilege because he had not discussed Watergate directly with Nixon.

Atomic Aid To Egyptians Under Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon's offer of nuclear aid to Egypt has drawn criticism from a number of key congressional figures, some claiming it could lead to the development of nuclear weapons in the Arab World.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he would propose legislation prohibiting all foreign aid to Egypt until that nation ratifies the treaty on nonproliferation of nuclear weapons.

In Jidda, Saudi Arabia, presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler responded to the congressional criticism by assuring that any agreement signed with Egypt will have "sharply drawn, thorough safeguards."

Ziegler also noted that any agreement for supplying U.S. nuclear aid to a foreign nation must be submitted to the Joint Atomic Energy Committee for review.

And in Chicago, Vice President Gerald R. Ford said that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat knows that if the materials are used for nonpeaceful purposes, "we will cut them off within seconds."

Nixon's announcement that the United States will aid Egypt in the development of nuclear power for peaceful purposes, made Friday in Cairo before his departure to Saudi Arabia, also provoked a critical response from the American Jewish Congress.

The organization said in a statement released in New York that Nixon's decision was "more likely to endanger world peace than preserve it."

Nixon Pledges Aid To Saudi Arabia

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — President Nixon ended his visit to this Arab kingdom today with a pledge of increased arms aid to King Faisal.

"The United States will see to it that the level of security consistent with its responsibility to the Middle East is raised," Nixon said in remarks at King Faisal's palace.

"If Saudi Arabia is strong and secure, as it will be, it will enhance the chances for peace," the American leader said as he prepared to fly to Syria for the third leg of his Middle East tour.

Nixon flies to Israel Sunday and winds up his journey on Monday with a visit to Jordan.

Faisal responded to Nixon's pledge by expressing the hope that "all problems and blemishes that seem to exist between the United States and some Arab countries will be removed."

Faisal also criticized those who oppose Nixon in and out of the United States: "It is very important that our friends in the United States ... rally behind you in your efforts to secure peace."

"Anybody who stands against you in the United States or outside the United States of America or against your relationship with us has only one thing in mind, to splinter us and damage the chances for peace," Faisal said.

The exchange of remarks followed more than two hours of private talks between Nixon and Faisal. Unlike the toasts made at a state dinner Friday night, there was no mention, direct or indirect, of oil.

Faisal had gently reminded the United States Friday of its vulnerability to the Arab oil weapon. In what may be turning into an Arab tradition, King Faisal used the toast of a state dinner Friday night to remind Nixon of the crucial role played by the Palestinian question in the region.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat referred to the matter in a toast to Nixon on Wednesday, saying: "There is no other road for a durable peace without a political solution to the Palestinian problem."

Nixon was welcomed to Jidda Friday for an overnight stop by a friendly but traditionally lowkeyed population, contrasting to the almost hysterical crowds who greeted him in Egypt.

Faisal, who also was warm but subdued in his greetings, rose at the end of the state dinner and said: "We believe that there will never be a real and lasting peace in the area unless Jerusalem is liberated and returned to Arab sovereignty, unless liberation of all the occupied Arab territories is achieved and unless Arab peoples of Palestine regain their rights ..."

Nixon's response to Faisal was the same as to Sadat.

"We want to play a helpful role ..." he said. "But we are aware that we cannot produce an instant formula to solve all long-time differences."

The king considers himself responsible for the protection of the Moslem holy places in Jerusalem and wants all Jewish participation in the Biblical city ended.

Saudi Arabia was a leader of the Arab oil boycott against the United States after last October's Middle East war, and it has implied that the embargo might be renewed if America fails in its efforts for a Middle East peace.

State Treasurer Denies GOP Charges

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic state Treasurer Gertrude Donahey Friday denied charges by her Republican challenger that she was negligent in the handling of employer contributions to the workmen's compensation fund.

Richard H. Harris of Wauseon, the GOP nominee, told newsmen Mrs.

Donahey left more than $7 million in contributions in mail bags for more than two months.

Harris said he was aware of the problem because he was district office coordinator for the Ohio Bureau of Workmen's Compensation for two years after Democrats took control of the Statehouse in 1970.

"There has never been any bureau mail or any other mail lying around in this office," Mrs. Donahey countered. She said there was about a "two-week delay" in some of it at first because she inherited the procedures and personnel of the previous Republican administration.

She said she worked with the bureau to correct mail procedures in the office. "The old procedures, we felt, were too slow," she said.

But Harris said Mrs. Donahey was not aware that the money was in her office until notified of the funds by irked employers.

Harris, now manager of a Toledo law office, said at the time he was in charge of all of Ohio's 16 district bureau offices of workmen's compensation and was acting deputy administrator of the Cleveland office.

As a result of the negligence, he said, Joseph J. Sommer, then administrator of the bureau and now director of the Department of Administrative Services, sought transfer of the responsibility for the funds to the bureau.

"They were going to transfer the responsibility but she (Mrs. Donahey) went to the governor's office and got it stopped," Harris said.

He said the fact that the money was lying around cost taxpayers about $100,000 in interest.

Both Mrs. Donahey and Sommer said they did not talk to the governor's office about the matter.

Sommer said the mail procedure had to be changed to "work smoothly."

"At the time, I was disturbed," he said. "I said if we're going to have problems let's take the responsibility away from the treasurer and put it in the bureau."

Sommer said the $7 million figure and the $100,000 lost in interest mentioned by Harris had to be "conjecture."

I don't know where he came up with that," Sommer said.

Also at his Friday news conference, Harris announced plans for a 910-mile walking trip around the border of the state, beginning in Toledo today. He estimated the trip will take 91 days.

Harris, 42, said he will walk 10 miles each morning and travel inland by car to "meet with the people" in the afternoons and evenings.

Moorehead Takes Life In County Jail

Paul Michael Moorehead, 22, 475 N. Court St., was dead on arrival at Berger Hospital Friday at 12:57 p.m. after hanging himself with a belt and towel in a cell of the Pickaway County Jail.

Efforts of the Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies to revive him through mouth-to-mouth resuscitation failed after he was found hanging in his cell at 12:39 p.m.

He apparently borrowed the belt and towel from another inmate.

Moorehead and another inmate were placed in the maximum security section of the jail early Friday morning after deputies concluded that he and Richard Joe Harris, Route 1, Mt. Sterling, had caused a disturbance and fire in the jail 12:05 a.m. Friday.

Harris spent the night in the city jail. Both men were stripped to their underwear as a precautionary measure, according to deputies, who said Moorehead had threatened to take his life earlier.

Both men were charged by deputies with attempted jail break and aggravated arson in the mattress-burning incident Friday morning in Circleville Municipal Court.

Upon their return to the jail, Moorehead and Harris were given their trousers to wear. Deputies were alerted to the hanging by an inmate in Moorehead's cell.

Deputies, in charging the men Friday, said Harris had threatened a jail break shortly after being arrested for driving while intoxicated Thursday night.

They said the men ignited a mattress immediately inside the entrance door that caused an estimated $500 damage.

Moorehead was incarcerated on a charge of breaking and entering at the office of Dr. R. S. Hosler, Ashville. He was to be released on a bill of information last Monday, but the court did not convene.

Moorehead was born Aug. 25, 1951 in Circleville. He was the son of James and Beatrice Reid Moorehead, who survive in Circleville.

He was a veteran of the United States Army and a member of the Trinity Lutheran Church. Other survivors include a paternal grandmother, Minnie Ethel Moorehead, Paulding; three brothers, James R., Columbus; Jeffery S. and Charles D., both of the home; one sister, Rebecca Ann, also at home.

The funeral service will be 1:30 p.m. Monday at the Defenbaugh-Wise-McCain Funeral Home with Pastor Carl Zehner officiating. Burial will be at Forest Cemetery.

Friends may call beginning 7 p.m. today at the funeral home.

Mulches Conserve Moisture And Aid In Weed Control

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Vegetable gardening is the "in" thing this year with inflation eroding away the food budget dollar. But, there is a lot of work tied to producing good, fresh vegetables.

Too much or not enough moisture, weeds that seem to grow best where you don't want them . . . and with or without moisture. These are just a couple of the problems gardeners run into.

Experienced gardeners know by now what to do, but here are tips for the new gardener.

There's a long list of organic mulch materials such as crushed corncocks, leafmold, manure, peanut hulls, and peat and others that will help you conserve moisture in the garden and aid in preventing weed growth, according to William M. Brooks, extension horticulturist at The Ohio State University.

Mulch materials have many beneficial effects on the soil, plants, and area surrounding the plants, he says. These include conserving soil moisture by reducing the evaporation of water from the soil, preventing crusting of the soil surface, thus improving absorption and percolation of water to the soil areas where roots are growing, maintaining a more uniform soil temperature by acting as an insulator that keeps the soil warm during cool spells and cooler during the warm months, and reducing weed problems when the mulch material itself is weed-free and is applied deeply enough to prevent weed seed germination or to smother existing smaller weeds.

Mulches also add to the beauty of the landscape, prevent fruit and plants from becoming mud splashed, and reduce losses from soil-bourne diseases.

Well decomposed mulch materials do their job without taking anything from the soil or plants. Fresh mulch such as undecomposed sawdust, straw, leaves, wood chips, grass clippings and others use the nitrogen in the soil to affect decomposition. Thus, the nitrogen is "tied up" in the mulch until the deterioration process is complete. If you use fresh mulch materials, extra nitrogen must be added or plants will suffer from lack of nitrogen. Add nitrogen at the rate of ¼ pound ammonium nitrate per bushel of mulch material or two pounds of a complete fertilizer per 100 square feet of garden area. Once the materials have decomposed, nitrogen used in the process is released and the materials cease to remove nitrogen from the soil. Your best bet is to use mulch materials that are already decomposed.

For best results, apply mulch at least two to four inches deep over the whole area during spring, summer, and early fall. Avoid crowns of very low-growing plants.

Once your vegetables have been harvested, mulch materials may be worked into the soil to improve texture, water holding capacity, and aeration of the soil. This practice improves the garden soil each year.

Bulletin 526, "Mulches for the Home Grounds," is available through the local County Extension Agent's office, at 137 W. Franklin St.

Recently a representative from a large charge card company spoke to numerous groups in Circleville on the heavenly aspects of using credit. She did mention budgeting, but you know how fanatic I am on this scene. What she did not emphasize is the fact that the average person spends much more, as much as 35 per cent more, using a charge card. We all know how much easier it is to sign our name to a charge slip rather than part with that scarce green stuff. Then there are those who charge "sale" items, thinking to save a few pennies, and they end up paying interest on the balance for several months.

When you are tempted to reach for that charge card, you might ask yourself: "Do I really need this item? Would I buy it if I had to pay cash for it? Will I be able to make payments on it?" Using credit wisely is a real challenge to even the strongest willed budgeter.

The F.D.A. considers the products to be hazardous and a potential threat to life. Not long ago I reported to you that a long list of bug and roach sprays were recalled because they, too, contained vinyl chloride. This is no surprise to me. I've been killing household bugs with hair spray for years.

Do you know a bride just getting started in her career of homemaking? Or a new member of our county who just moved here? Why not do them a favor! I have compiled a "bride's packet" of recipes, budgeting information, and home tips. Let me know the bride's new name and address and I'll send her our best wishes and packet of goodies. People new to our county will want to learn about the services of Extension.

In a study of people injured by falls involving stairs at home, the Michigan State University found that 81 percent of the home falls happen to women. The falls occurred most often in mid-morning and mid-afternoon, when women are busy cleaning and laundering. Three-fourths of the falls were caused by slipping. Only one-fourth of all the "accident stairs" had handrails and over one-half had poor lighting. Do you have safe stairs?

Do you use more energy carrying different things up and down stairs? Younger women can carry a 16 pound basket of clothing, a vacuum cleaner, or a baby up the stairs and use about the same amount of energy for each type load. But when an older group of women, 62 to 73 years of age, carried the same loads, they used much more energy for carrying the basket of clothes, a moderate amount of energy for the vacuum cleaner, and the least energy for the baby. This tells us that older folks sometimes have more trouble with the size or bulkiness, not necessarily the weight, of a load.

It takes two hours and thirty-nine minutes of every working day just to pay taxes for the average American worker. Or, putting it another way, if you start work at 8 a.m., take an hour for lunch, you would quit at 2:21 p.m. every day instead of 5:00 p.m. if it weren't for the tax debit. Following the tax bite, food presently takes 58 minutes of work, housing an hour, clothing 25 minutes, medical 23 minutes, recreation 18 minutes, and all else an hour and 37 minutes. These are "average" figures.

What happens if you do not make your installment payments? The U. S. Supreme Court handed down a new ruling, upholding a Louisiana law, which allows a creditor to get a court order to seize goods from a consumer, without giving any notice or a hearing, if payments are overdue. This decision overturns a 1972 Supreme Court ruling that said the consumer must be notified before repossession could take place.

Parakeets Threaten Crops

Not since Alfred Hitchcocks' movie the "Birds," have some people been so alarmed by their "feathered friends." In this case, the concern arises over the monk parakeet and the interest extends to Ohioans.

This South American native is known also as the Quaker or Gray-headed parakeet but no matter which name is used, the result spells crop damage, according to the National Geographic Society.

Reports indicate there are two parakeets presently in the northern Columbus area, as well as others in Shadeville, Huron, Worthington, and Wadsworth.

This dove-sized bird, a greenish gray with a lemon yellow belly, long slender tail, and gray face and breast, is considered a major agricultural threat in Argentina, according to a pamphlet released by the U. S. Department of the Interior.

Sources in Argentina report crop damages ranging from 3 to 15 percent, however the province of Cordoba lists crop loss at 45 percent.

The monk parakeet feeds on grain fields which include wheat, corn, millet, and sorghum, and orchards - cherries, grapes, pears, and apples.

Perhaps the threat to crops in Ohio appears unlikely, considering that there are only a few birds in the entire state. However, in view of the monk parakeet's potential for a population burst the threat intensifies.

4-H Concern Is People Help Others

Girls and boys as individuals, each with needs, interests, and potentials is what 4-H is all about.

So both teenagers and leaders involved in the educational program can do a bit of thinking if the projects and activities are contributing to these basic needs of an individual . . . to experience a satisfactory self-concept, to experience success in achievement, to become increasingly independent, to give and receive affection, to develop and accept one's own sex role, and to be accepted by one's peers as well as one's elders.

"Consider your needs and interests" is a guide in choosing a 4-H project or any part of the 4-H program. Will giving a demonstration in county 4-H day meet some of your interests and needs as you "grow up." As a leader are you encouraging each girl and boy in your group to meet the needs listed above?

Because the Ohio 4-H and other Extension youth programs are so varied in every way, there is one or more project or activity capable of helping any youth in meeting one of these needs and interests.

The female parakeet produces about seven eggs per nest as many as three times a year. This means that one female monk parakeet could potentially yield 21 offspring annually.

The only known stick-nesting parakeet in the world, the monk parakeet nests sometimes grow to be 30 feet long and 15 feet high.

First discovered on Long Island, N. Y., in 1967, these parakeets have been sighted in 24 different states.

All the talk about humans despoiling the earth puts added emphasis on the use of fungicides. Many fungicides do little or no harm to the environment. Leading the list of "nature-safe" materials are the copper fungicides. Copper ushered in the age of spraying to control plant diseases, says Charles C. Powell, Extension Plant pathologist at The Ohio State University. Bordeaux mixture, a type of copper fungicide, has been used for almost 100 years, he says. A copper fungicide on a leaf will inhibit the microbes that cause plant diseases. Other elements of nature go untouched. In fact, copper is one of the minerals required by all green plants, the specialist, reveals.

For copper fungicides to protect plants, they must be placed on the plants before the microbes arrive. Knowledge of when disease has appeared on the plant in past years helps determine this time of arrival. For example, the sycamore anthracnose fungus lives overwinter on twigs. When warm, rainy spring weather begins, the fungus produces spores. These spores land on new leaves and produce disease. Copper fungicides must be placed on the leaves to protect them against these damaging spores.

This copper barrier must be kept on the leaves throughout the spring. A spreader-sticker helps hold the fungicide on the plants. Even so, rainy springs mean we must spray about every two weeks. The important point is to keep the chemical present as a barrier between the leaf and the harmful microbes.

Copper fungicides can be used on many types of plants. There are many different types available. All will cause leaf damage if not used correctly. Therefore, it is important to read the label before spraying. Know what disease is to be controlled. Know what type of copper fungicide you are using. Know whether you are to apply it as a dust or a spray.

One final point, copper fungicides are hard on sprayers. The material must be mixed well. If sprayer does not have an agitator, mix well by shaking. Equipment must be carefully washed out after each use.

shipment to pet dealers or deliberately when disillusioned owners could no longer tolerate the birds' constant racket.

Control of these birds poses a difficult problem. In Argentina, several methods have been tried, including destruction of the nests by fire, shooting, netting, poisoning, and payments of bounties, according to the U. S. Department of the Interior.

In addition to these methods, two others have been tried in the U. S. According to an article in this years February issue of the Animal Kingdom, the domestic cat is probably the only real predator of the monk parakeet.

Besides relying on cats, the article stated that New York has attempted semi-successfully to capture the birds live through a decoy method.

This method was inefficient for the most part and was only employed when time permitted or when live birds were essential for study purposes. Decoy monk parakeets were most useful in locating other monk parakeets and their nests.

Nevertheless, as of March 19, 1974, the National Geographic Society reported that more than 50,000 of these elusive birds have been brought into the U. S. since 1968. Importation is banned presently.

Before importation bans were set, the monk parakeet sold for about $6 in pet shops on the East Coast. Now they are selling for $30.

Mulches Conserve Moisture And Aid In Weed Control

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Vegetable gardening is the "in" thing this year with inflation eroding away the food budget dollar. But, there is a lot of work tied to producing good, fresh vegetables.

Too much or not enough moisture, weeds that seem to grow best where you don't want them . . . and with or without moisture. These are just a couple of the problems gardeners run into.

Experienced gardeners know by now what to do, but here are tips for the new gardener.

There's a long list of organic mulch materials such as crushed corn cobs, leafmold, manure, peanut hulls, and peat and others that will help you conserve moisture in the garden and aid in preventing weed growth, according to William M. Brooks, extension horticulturist at The Ohio State University.

Mulch materials have many beneficial effects on the soil, plants, and area surrounding the plants, he says. These include conserving soil moisture by reducing the evaporation of water from the soil, preventing crusting of the soil surface, thus improving absorption and percolation of water to the soil areas where roots are growing, maintaining a more uniform soil temperature by acting as an insulator that keeps the soil warm during cool spells and cooler during the warm months, and reducing weed problems when the mulch material itself is weed-free and is applied deeply enough to prevent weed seed germination or to smother existing smaller weeds.

Mulches also add to the beauty of the landscape, prevent fruit and plants from becoming mud splashed, and reduce losses from soil-borne diseases.

Well decomposed mulch materials do their job without taking anything from the soil or plants. Fresh mulch such as undecomposed sawdust, straw, leaves, wood chips, grass clippings and others use the nitrogen in the soil to affect decomposition. Thus, the nitrogen is "tied up" in the mulch until the deterioration process is complete. If you use fresh mulch materials, extra nitrogen must be added or plants will suffer from lack of nitrogen. Add nitrogen at the rate of 1/4 pound ammonium nitrate per bushel of mulch material or two pounds of a complete fertilizer per 100 square feet of garden area. Once the materials have decomposed, nitrogen used in the process is released and the materials cease to remove nitrogen from the soil. Your best bet is to use mulch materials that are already decomposed.

For best results, apply mulch at least two to four inches deep over the whole area during spring, summer, and early fall. Avoid crowns of very low-growing plants.

Once your vegetables have been harvested, mulch materials may be worked into the soil to improve texture, water holding capacity, and aeration of the soil. This practice improves the garden soil each year.

Bulletin 526, "Mulches for the Home Grounds," is available through the local County Extension Agent's office, at 137 W. Franklin St.

Recently a representative from a large charge card company spoke to numerous groups in Circleville on the heavenly aspects of using credit. She did mention budgeting, but you know how fanatic I am on this scene. What she did not emphasize is the fact that the average person spends much more, as much as 35 per cent more, using a charge card. We all know how much easier it is to sign our name to a charge slip rather than part with that scarce green stuff. Then there are those who charge "sale" items, thinking to save a few pennies, and they end up paying interest on the balance for several months.

When you are tempted to reach for that charge card, you might ask yourself: "Do I really need this item? Would I buy it if I had to pay cash for it? Will I be able to make payments on it?" Using credit wisely is a real challenge to even the strongest willed budgeter.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court today let stand an 8th District Court of Appeals decision favoring a Cleveland Theater that showed the movie "Deep Throat."

The court refused to review the case involving Cleveland Law Director Herbert R. Whiting and the Roxy Limited Inc., the theater he sought to close with an injunction.

Sgt. Raymond Pope of the Cleveland vice squad arrested the theater manager, Thomas Flynn, March 12, 1973 after viewing the movie 30 minutes.

Pope is the husband of State Rep. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, who later introduced a bill into the Ohio General Assembly redefining Ohio obscenity laws in view of U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

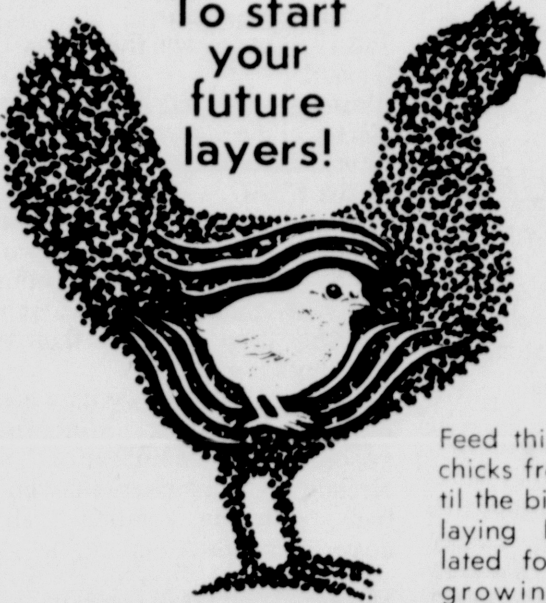

The bill passed the House but was still in the Senate Judiciary Committee when the legislature recessed for the summer Thursday.

Wilt Hurts Cucumbers, Muskmelons

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

Bacterial wilt affects plants in the cucumber family such as cucumbers and muskmelons and, less frequently, squash and pumpkins. Watermelons are seldom affected.

The bacterial wilt disease is carried by the striped and 12-spotted cucumber beetles. When beetles feed on the plant, the bacteria are transmitted to the leaves or stems, says Extension Entomologist Richard L. Miller of The Ohio State University.

Characteristic of the disease is wilting of the plant. One or more leaves suddenly wilt over night and become dull green in appearance, says Miller. The disease spreads from the leaves downward into the petioles and stem until the entire plant wilts and dies. Less susceptible plants such as squash and pumpkin may show a dwarfing effect in growth, sometimes accompanied by excessive blossoming and blanching.

The beetles and the bacterial wilt disease are so intimately related that controlling the beetles will control the bacterial wilt, he says.

Miller says the best control measure is to use an insecticide when the seedlings first come up and continue applications at 5-day intervals during the growing season. Use either Sevin, 50 per cent WP, at the rate of two tablespoons per gallon of water or malathion, 50 per cent EC, at the rate of 3½ teaspoons per gallon of water. Make the first application as soon as the young plants start to break through the soil surface and repeat at five-day intervals.

If rain comes within the five-day period, repeat the treatment promptly and then return to the regular five-day interval. Malathion may cause injury to plants if applied before they start to vine.

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q.) Can a taxpayer who has paid the tax proposed after an IRS audit still contest the results of the examination?

(A.) Yes. You may file a claim for refund if, after having paid your tax, you believe the tax is erroneous or excessive. If your claim is rejected, you will receive a statutory disallowance of your claim. You can then go to court. If the IRS has not acted on your claim within six months from the date you filed it, you can also file suit for refund. A suit for refund must be filed not later than two years after disallowance of your claim.

You may file your refund suit in the United States District Court or the U.S. Court of Claims. For information about procedures for filing suit in these courts, contact the clerk of your District Court or the clerk of the Court of Claims, 717 Madison Place, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

(Q.) I pay my mother $10 a week to take care of my child while I go out to work. Are these payments deductible as child expenses?

(A.) No. Payments made to relatives or dependent household members may not be included in computing the childcare deduction. For more information, see IRS Publication 503, "Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care." It's available free from your IRS office.

(Q.) On April 15, I filed a 1040 ES declaration and paid my first installment of estimated tax for 1974. I just bought a house and the deductions I hope to get for the year should greatly reduce my estimated tax. What should I do?

(A.) Complete the amended computation section of your Form 1040 ES worksheet and file an amended declaration of estimated tax. For changes in your tax situation that require an amended declaration occurring between April 1 and June 2, file the amended declaration by June 17, 1974.

Letters Remind Of Gift Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Letters are being sent to all government officials reminding them that they must surrender gifts worth more than $50 received from foreign governments. Distribution of the letters was announced Thursday by John King, State Department press officer, who noted the gifts must be turned over to the department Office of Protocol. King said Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., turned over a diamond given to his wife by the President of Zaire. He said the item had not been turned over before because of a "misunderstanding of what the law required."

Wilt Hurts Cucumbers, Muskmelons

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent Agriculture
Bacterial wilt affects plants in the cucumber family such as cucumbers and muskmelons and, less frequently, squash and pumpkins. Watermelons are seldom affected.

The bacterial wilt disease is carried by the striped and 12-spotted cucumber beetles. When beetles feed on the plant, the bacteria are transmitted to the leaves or stems, says Extension Entomologist Richard L. Miller of The Ohio State University.

Characteristic of the disease is wilting of the plant. One or more leaves suddenly wilt over night and become dull green in appearance, says Miller. The disease spreads from the leaves downward into the petioles and stem until the entire plant wilts and dies. Less susceptible plants such as squash and pumpkin may show a dwarfing effect in growth, sometimes accompanied by excessive blossoming and blanching.

The beetles and the bacterial wilt disease are so intimately related that controlling the beetles will control the bacterial wilt, he says.

Miller says the best control measure is to use an insecticide when the seedlings first come up and continue applications at 5-day intervals during the growing season. Use either Sevin, 50 per cent WP, at the rate of two tablespoons per gallon of water or malathion, 50 per cent EC, at the rate of 3½ teaspoons per gallon of water. Make the first application as soon as the young plants start to break through the soil surface and repeat at five-day intervals.

If rain comes within the five-day period, repeat the treatment promptly and then return to the regular five-day interval. Malathion may cause injury to plants if applied before they start to vine.

A Page Of Opinion

Social Security Warning

Last spring when taxpayers were completing their federal income tax returns, a startling fact of the federal tax system became apparent to many for the first time: Social Security taxes in many cases now equal or surpass federal income taxes.

The rapid growth of Social Security taxes in recent years is due in large measure to increases in payouts and a broadened base which includes millions more among the beneficiaries. But another factor — a falling birth rate — adds another dimension to the financing of the program which worries its overseers.

As trustees of the Social Security system, the secretaries of Treasury, Labor and Health, Education and Welfare have warned Congress that further tax increases will be necessary in the near future to make up for a diminished birth rate and an aging population. The only alternative, they say, is for part of the fund to be financed from the general treasury.

Revenue projections this year for the first time have been based on 1970 census data, based on a fertility rate of 2.1 babies per woman. That is close to the zero population growth rate, and a significant drop from the 2.3 to 2.8 rates previously used.

Congress now has been warned officially of something many taxpayers already have recognized — that a once insignificant tax is well on the way toward becoming the heaviest of all.

Israel Airlift Lift

WITH THE PRESIDENT — It is conceivable that there would now be no Israel for President Nixon to visit on his trip to the Middle East if the U.S. Air Force's Military Airlift Command had not been around, ready and sensitive to orders when the Israelis were struck heavily from Egypt and Syria last October.

The details of our semi-secret assistance to the embattled Israelis take on new historical significance as the President makes a point of assuring the new Israeli officials that there state is here to stay. How amply and swiftly we kept its status immaculately (and expensively) in the quo category, when it was confronted by overwhelming Arab forces which for a change wanted to and could fight well, may be seen from the following:

higher than the Red Air Force's AN-12's and AN-22's. These Russian planes are turbo-props, imitations of our D C-130's the workhorse of the Vietnam War. Once we got into it, Israel rallied and pressed onward until it obtained at least a draw, and a fair shake in the division of new boundaries.

The Russians flew 935 missions to their allies in 40 days, over the short distance of 1,700 miles. That amounted to 15,000 tons of supplies. MAC flew 566 missions, covering 6,450 nautical miles, and delivered more than 22,000 tons in 33 days. (El Al, the Israeli airline, picked up an additional 5,000 tons of material and flew it from the U.S. to Tel Aviv.)

The awesome variety of arms and weapons systems we flew to Israel was in some cases pressed into action within three hours after being put down at Tel Aviv. The biggest airplane in the world, and perhaps the most maligned when Lockheed was building it, the C-5, flew only 25 per cent of the U.S. missions. But it carried 48 per cent of the goods. It easily lifted and delivered such ponderous items as M-60 and M-48 battle tanks, each in the 100,000-pound class; CH-53 helicopters, weight 23,500 pounds each; 175 millimeter howitzers; and jet fighters which only had to have their accompanying wings snapped on. (We burned 236,125,000 pounds of fuel, but saved a country.)

By contrast, we and the British flew 2,250,000 tons of supplies to Berlin in 266,000 flights during 1948 and 1949. Seventeen C-5's could have handled the entire Berlin Airlift. Fewer than that kept Israel in there punching.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The home mortgage market bleeds away, crushed by the pressure of high interest rates. The funds that once went into housing is now chasing higher yields elsewhere.

This is the conventional explanation for the distress in housing, and with good reason.

Withdrawals from savings accounts at mutual savings banks, for example, topped $800 million in April and May. And at the end of May the nation's savings and loan associations had $1.5 billion less to lend out than they had a year ago.

Since these two institutions make up the thrift industry, which is the biggest supporter of the home mortgage market, the impact is obvious. They are forced to curtail their lending activities.

But those withdrawals explain only a part of the difficulties families are having in buying their own homes. A change of attitude by another industry, life insurance, makes the problem more difficult.

Life insurers have tended in recent years to increase their allotment of mortgage money for commercial and industrial properties at a faster rate than for residential properties.

Moreover, a greater share of the residential mortgage money now is being lent on multifamily, or large apartment houses, and less on residences having just one to four units.

Figures supplied by the Institute of Life Insurance show that in 1973 loans for multifamily housing increased $1 billion during the year to a total of $17.8 billion, but the amount provided on dwellings of four units or less fell to $19.8 billion from $21.5 billion in the year before.

The trend now is in at least its eighth year.

Various reasons are offered for the decline, but none makes more sense than the fact insurers find it more profitable to invest in large, income-producing properties on which they sometimes share in the profits.

Insurers are not so committed to the mortgage market, legally or morally, as the thrift institutions are. The latter have a commitment to take the savings of depositors and lend it on mortgages. The insurers have no such obligation.

Another explanation relates to demographic changes. Throughout the 1960s the number of people in the "home buying ages," 25 to 44, remained stable. But the number in the "rental ages," under 25 and over 44, continued to grow.

With the young renters now moving into the home-buying age group the question arises: Will insurers shift funds back into single-family dwellings and houses with units of four or fewer?

But the deciding factor, as it probably is right now, is likely to be money. If the returns on industrial, commercial and apartment house mortgages remain high, that's probably where the money will go.

Prince Dates American

LONDON (AP)—His great-uncle's death kept Prince Charles from entertaining a California girl at Ambassador Walter Annenberg's farewell party Thursday night, but the heir to the British throne took her to Buckingham Palace instead.

An American Embassy official confirmed that Charles had a secret date with Laura Jo Watkins, 20, the daughter of an admiral from San Diego who came 6,000 miles for the Annenberg's party because the prince asked that she be invited.

Charles, 25, was to have been the guest of honor at the dinner and dance the ambassador and his wife gave to say goodbye after five years in London. The Annenbergs asked Charles if he wanted to invite anyone, and he asked for Miss Watkins. They met last March at a cocktail party when the prince visited San Diego while on duty with the Royal Navy.

Miss Watkins arrived in London Saturday to visit the Annenbergs, but on Monday the Duke of Gloucester died. The court went into mourning until the funeral today, and Charles couldn't go to the party.

Miss Watkins didn't go either. Instead she slipped out of the ambassador's residence just before the party began and was driven to Buckingham Palace. The Daily Mail said she returned to the Annenbergs' about 11:30 p.m.

Dr. Wells Wilson, Route 1, president of the Logan Elm Board of Education, presided over the ground-breaking ceremony starting the construction of the consolidated school. Schools officials expected the building to be completed by August, 1960, in time for the school year.

Paul Sarchet, 22, a native of Cambridge, was hired by the Circleville Board of Education as an assistant football coach. He was to teach eighth grade Ohio history and be in charge of the seventh and eighth grade flag football programs.

Free orchids for the ladies and gifts for children and men were in the offing at the grand opening celebration of the Circleville Oil Co. The opening was set at the station at Court and High Sts. and Conrad's Service Station, E. Main and Mingo Sts.

George Hartman, superintendent of city schools, told the Circleville Rotary Club the schools must face a new expansion program in 1960. He hinted that a bond issue may be placed before the voters to construct a school on Nicholas Drive, and said he would ask the school board to employ a full-time guidance counselor.

San Francisco Pennies Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pennies minted in San Francisco are being withheld from circulation because speculators are trying to hoard them, Director Mary T. Brooks of the U.S. Mint disclosed today.

The development is the latest in the nationwide penny shortage which has left store cash registers in many parts of the country empty of pennies.

Mrs. Brooks said some speculators have been offering $475 for $50 worth of pennies bearing the San Francisco "S" mint mark.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Many theories exist about why some children are born prematurely. A great deal of scientific information relating to this has been accumulating.

Now, a new theory is being greeted with great enthusiasm. It may eventually mean that prematurity and its associated problems in the newborn will be eradicated.

Dr. Arpad I. Csapo, of the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, has shed light on the balance between the female hormone, progesterone, and prostaglandin.

This latter substance is one that has captured the imagination of scientists everywhere because of its many valuable properties.

Dr. Csapo believes that his experimental work in animals may soon be used successfully in prolonging pregnancy to full term.

Dr. George D. Roston, a dental surgeon practicing in New York City, says, "Thanks to a marvelous array of equipment, drugs, techniques and new insight amongst dentists, patients can now be promised painless dentistry."

"Painless" injections can truly be free of pain. Pressure guns, now in use for vaccination, can be used in dentistry, too.

High speed drills, ultrasonic vibrations and electro-surgery can all be used to virtually eliminate all pain.

Dentists, highly skilled in the mechanics of their profession, are also being trained in the delicate art of psychology to alleviate tension and fear.

Hypnosis has long been recognized as a valuable addition in attaining that ultimate goal of painless dentistry.

Aluminum Wiring, TV Set Hazards Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission issued some advice today on how people could protect themselves from faulty television sets and aluminum wiring in homes.

The guidelines are based upon data gathered by federal investigators and citizens' testimony over several days of public hearings.

Witnesses testified that faulty TV sets pose fire and electrical shock hazards that have claimed more than a dozen lives and that a substantial number of the two million houses wired since 1965 with aluminum may burst into flame without warning.

The commission has served notice that it intends to write mandatory safety standards for TVs, but is investigating allegations against aluminum wiring to determine if it poses an unreasonable risk of injury.

In the cases of TVs, the commission said special precautions should be taken with portable color models in plastic cabinets.

But the following guidelines apply to both color and black-and-white sets:

—Read operating instructions carefully.

—If the set is damaged or the picture fails, unplug it immediately and call a repairman.

—Make sure replacement parts have the same safety characteristics as original components and ask the technician to run the repaired set through the manufacturer's safety check list.

—Unplug the set if it makes abnormally loud, continuous or frequent snapping or popping sounds and call a repairman.

—Caution children not to drop or push objects into cabinet openings and never operate a set after liquid has been spilled into it. This can cause electrical shorts.

—Never clean the screen while the set is operating and never expose it to rain or water.

—Avoid covering ventilation openings in the cabinet and don't place the set in an enclosed space.

—Always turn the TV off when leaving the room for any period of time and unplug the set and disconnect the antenna when leaving for a vacation.

—Don't routinely unplug the set, however, as this could damage the wires and pose a fire hazard.

—If the set is an "instant-on" model, use the so-called vacation or defeat switch if available or plug the set into an outlet controlled by a wall switch to shut off electrical current completely.

In the case of aluminum wiring, the commission advises that an expert be called in if the homeowner is not thoroughly trained in electrical work. "Serious or fatal electric shock could result" otherwise, the agency said.

Homeowners are advised to call in an expert immediately if any of the following trouble signals develop: warm switch or receptacle face plate, distinctive odor of burning plastic or unexplained flickering of lights.

These are the other aluminum wiring tips:

—If the homeowner is not sure whether his home was wired with aluminum, call in an expert and ask him to check out the electrical connections.

—If switches and outlets must be replaced, use only devices labeled CO-ALR which are designed for aluminum wiring and have an expert do the work.

—An alternative method in new construction is use of a short piece of insulated copper wire between the aluminum wire and the switch or outlet.

Ehrlichman Trial Set With Others

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell today ordered former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman to stand trial along with other defendants in the Plumbers case. The judge set a new trial date of June 26.

After nearly three weeks of struggle with the White House over the issue of executive privilege, Gesell said President Nixon has allowed sufficient access to White House files for Ehrlichman's trial to go forward.

Gesell said he had wanted to make sure Ehrlichman would have access to specific files left behind in the White House which might aid his case.

"That has taken place," Gesell said.

Ehrlichman and three other defendants originally were scheduled to go on trial next Monday in connection with the 1971 break-in at the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, a Beverly Hills, Calif., psychiatrist who treated Pentagon Papers figure Daniel Ellsberg.

But earlier this week, Gesell said he would sever Ehrlichman's case from that of the other three defendants because of an apparent impasse over Ehrlichman's attempt to gain access to his White House files. Gesell said at that time that Ehrlichman would be tried later.

The break in the legal log-jam came Wednesday, when President Nixon waived executive privilege for some documents then in the judge's hands.

Until then, Nixon had been asserting ultimate authority to decide if those documents, handwritten notes of Ehrlichman's, could be admitted as evidence in the coming trial.

Social Security Warning

Last spring when taxpayers were completing their federal income tax returns, a startling fact of the federal tax system became apparent to many for the first time: Social Security taxes in many cases now equal or surpass federal income taxes.

The rapid growth of Social Security taxes in recent years is due in large measure to increases in payouts and a broadened base which includes millions more among the beneficiaries. But another factor — a falling birth rate — adds another dimension to the financing of the program which worries its overseers.

As trustees of the Social Security system, the secretaries of Treasury, Labor and Health, Education and Welfare have warned Congress that further tax increases will be necessary in the near future to make up for a diminished birth rate and an aging population. The only alternative, they say, is for part of the fund to be financed from the general treasury.

Revenue projections this year for the first time have been based on 1970 census data, based on a fertility rate of 2.1 babies per woman. That is close to the zero population growth rate, and a significant drop from the 2.3 to 2.8 rates previously used.

Congress now has been warned officially of something many taxpayers already have recognized — that a once insignificant tax is well on the way toward becoming the heaviest of all.

Many theories exist about why some children are born prematurely. A great deal of scientific information relating to this has been accumulating.

Now, a new theory is being greeted with great enthusiasm. It may eventually mean that prematurity and its associated problems in the newborn will be eradicated.

Dr. Arpad I. Csapo, of the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, has shed light on the balance between the female hormone, progesterone, and prostaglandin.

This latter substance is one that has captured the imagination of scientists everywhere because of its many valuable properties.

Dr. Csapo believes that his experimental work in animals may soon be used successfully in prolonging pregnancy to full term.

Dr. George D. Roston, a dental surgeon practicing in New York City, says, "Thanks to a marvelous array of equipment, drugs, techniques and new insight amongst dentists, patients can now be promised painless dentistry."

"Painless" injections can truly be free of pain. Pressure guns, now in use for vaccination, can be used in dentistry, too.

High speed drills, ultrasonic vibrations and electro-surgery can all be used to virtually eliminate all pain.

Dentists, highly skilled in the mechanics of their profession, are also being trained in the delicate art of psychology to alleviate tension and fear.

Hypnosis has long been recognized as a valuable addition in attaining that ultimate goal of painless dentistry.

Israel Airlift Lift

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

WITH THE PRESIDENT — It is conceivable that there would now be no Israel for President Nixon to visit on his trip to the Middle East if the U.S. Air Force's Military Airlift Command had not been around, ready and sensitive to orders when the Israelis were struck heavily from Egypt and Syria last October.

The details of our semi-secret assistance to the embattled Israelis take on new historical significance as the President makes a point of assuring the new Israeli officials that there state is here to stay. How amply and swiftly we kept its status immaculately (and expensively) in the quo category, when it was confronted by overwhelming Arab forces which for a change wanted to and could fight well, may be seen from the following:

After failing to persuade the Soviet Union to knock off its airlift of military aid to Arab countries, which began on October 10, four days after the start of the war, the Nixon Administration's cohesion of military and diplomatic forces moved swiftly toward a point-of-no-return policy. There was no panic, no shooting from the hip or any other part of the anatomy.

MAC's (Military Airlift Command) engines remained warm, its crews and communications flexible.

The options were several: there was a suggestion (rejected) that in view of the entente with Russia in many other fields, we should simply fly military gear to East Coast airports and let Israeli planes pick it up there and fly it to the scene of battle. Another suggestion (rejected) was that we fly the stuff halfway, specifically to the Lajes air base in the Azores. A third plan was for MAC to charter U.S. commercial planes and use them for the lift to blur the military aspect of our operation.

But, inevitably, MAC did what it has been doing (under one name or another) since World War II. It picked up the vital cargoes and the technicians who know how to make the machinery work — or instruct friends to work it — and off they went.

It turned out to be the greatest and perhaps least publicized airlift in history.

Within a week or two after the Russians had jumped the gun, we had immeasurably superior jets supplying the Israeli forces from thousands of miles farther away from the action than the Russians had to fly their material to Arab airfields.

At one point the stream of rival planes more or less converged over Crete, and the nervous Greek government asked us if we would please change our flight pattern (controlled by NATO communications) so that there was little chance of mid-air crackups. MAC's C-141's and C-5's flew thousands of feet higher than the Red Air Force's AN-12's and AN-22's. These Russian planes are turbo-props, imitations of our D C-130's the workhorse of the Vietnam War. Once we got into it, Israel rallied and pressed onward until it obtained at least a draw, and a fair share in the division of new boundaries.

The Russians flew 935 missions to their allies in 40 days, over the short distance of 1,700 miles. That amounted to 15,000 tons of supplies. MAC flew 566 missions, covering 6,450 nautical miles, and delivered more than 22,000 tons in 33 days. (El Al, the Israeli airline, picked up an additional 5,000 tons of material and flew it from the U.S. to Tel Aviv.)

The awesome variety of arms and weapons systems we flew to Israel was in some cases pressed into action

within three hours after being put down at Tel Aviv. The biggest airplane in the world, and perhaps the most maligned when Lockheed was building it, the C-5, flew only 25 per cent of the U.S. missions. But it carried 48 per cent of the goods. It easily lifted and delivered such ponderous items as M-60 and M-48 battle tanks, each in the 100,000-pound class; CH-53 helicopters, weight 23,500 pounds each; 175 millimeter howitzers; and jet fighters which only had to have their accompanying wings snapped on. (We burned 236,125,000 pounds of fuel, but saved a country.)

By contrast, we and the British flew 2,250,000 tons of supplies to Berlin in 266,000 flights during 1948 and 1949. Seventeen C-5's could have handled the entire Berlin Airlift. Fewer than that kept Israel in there punching.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The home mortgage market bleeds away, crushed by the pressure of high interest rates. The funds that once went into housing is now chasing higher yields elsewhere.

This is the conventional explanation for the distress in housing, and with good reason.

Withdrawals from savings accounts at mutual savings banks, for example, topped $800 million in April and May. And at the end of May the nation's savings and loan associations had $1.5 billion less to lend out than they had a year ago.

Since these two institutions make up the thrift industry, which is the biggest supporter of the home mortgage market, the impact is obvious. They are forced to curtail their lending activities.

But those withdrawals explain only a part of the difficulties families are having in buying their own homes. A change of attitude by another industry, life insurance, makes the problem more difficult.

Life insurers have tended in recent years to increase their allotment of mortgage money for commercial and industrial properties at a faster rate than for residential properties.

Moreover, a greater share of the residential mortgage money now is being lent on multifamily, or large apartment houses, and less on residences having just one to four units.

Figures supplied by the Institute of Life Insurance show that in 1973 loans for multifamily housing increased $1 billion during the year to a total of $17.8 billion, but the amount provided on dwellings of four units or less fell to $19.8 billion from $21.5 billion in the year before.

The trend now is in at least its eighth year.

Various reasons are offered for the decline, but none makes more sense than the fact insurers find it more profitable to invest in large, income-producing properties on which they sometimes share in the profits.

Insurers are not so committed to the mortgage market, legally or morally, as the thrift institutions are. The latter have a commitment to take the savings of depositors and lend it on mortgages. The insurers have no such obligation.

Another explanation relates to demographic changes. Throughout the 1960s the number of people in the "home buying ages," 25 to 44, remained stable. But the number in the "rental ages," under 25 and over 44, continued to grow.

With the young renters now moving into the home-buying age group the question arises: Will insurers shift funds back into single-family dwellings and houses with units of four or fewer?

But the deciding factor, as it probably is right now, is likely to be money. If the returns on industrial, commercial and apartment house mortgages remain high, that's probably where the money will go.

Prince Dates American

LONDON (AP)—His great-uncle's death kept Prince Charles from entertaining a California girl at Ambassador Walter Annenberg's farewell party Thursday night, but the heir to the British throne took her to Buckingham Palace instead.

An American Embassy official confirmed that Charles had a secret date with Laura Jo Watkins, 20, the daughter of an admiral from San Diego who came 6,000 miles for the Annenberg's party because the prince asked that she be invited.

Charles, 25, was to have been the guest of honor at the dinner and dance the ambassador and his wife gave to say goodbye after five years in London. The Annenbergs asked Charles if he wanted to invite anyone, and he asked for Miss Watkins. They met last March at a cocktail party when the prince visited San Diego while on duty with the Royal Navy.

Miss Watkins arrived in London Saturday to visit the Annenbergs, but on Monday the Duke of Gloucester died. The court went into mourning until the funeral today, and Charles couldn't go to the party.

Miss Watkins didn't go either. Instead she slipped out of the ambassador's residence just before the party began and was driven to Buckingham Palace. The Daily Mail said she returned to the Annenbergs' about 11:30 p.m.

San Francisco Pennies Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pennies minted in San Francisco are being withheld from circulation because speculators are trying to hoard them, Director Mary T. Brooks of the U.S. Mint disclosed today.

The development is the latest in the nationwide penny shortage which has left store cash registers in many parts of the country empty of pennies.

Mrs. Brooks said some speculators have been offering $475 for $50 worth of pennies bearing the San Francisco "S" mint mark.

Aluminum Wiring, TV Set Hazards Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission issued some advice today on how people could protect themselves from faulty television sets and aluminum wiring in homes.

The guidelines are based upon data gathered by federal investigators and citizens' testimony over several days of public hearings.

Witnesses testified that faulty TV sets pose fire and electrical shock hazards that have claimed more than a dozen lives and that a substantial number of the two million houses wired since 1965 with aluminum may burst into flame without warning.

The commission has served notice that it intends to write mandatory safety standards for TVs, but is investigating allegations against aluminum wiring to determine if it poses an unreasonable risk of injury. In the cases of TVs, the commission said special precautions should be taken with portable color models in plastic cabinets.

But the following guidelines apply to both color and black-and-white sets:

—Read operating instructions carefully.

—If the set is damaged or the picture fails, unplug it immediately and call a repairman.

—Make sure replacement parts have the same safety characteristics as original components and ask the technician to run the repaired set through the manufacturer's safety check list.

—Unplug the set if it makes abnormally loud, continuous or frequent snapping or popping sounds and call a repairman.

—Caution children not to drop or push objects into cabinet openings and never operate a set after liquid has been spilled into it. This can cause electrical shorts.

—Never clean the screen while the set is operating and never expose it to rain or water.

—Avoid covering ventilation openings in the cabinet and don't place the set in an enclosed space.

—Always turn the TV off when leaving the room for any period of time and unplug the set and disconnect the antenna when leaving for a vacation.

—Don't routinely unplug the set, however, as this could damage the wires and pose a fire hazard.

—If the set is an "instant-on" model, use the so-called vacation or defeat switch if available or plug the set into an outlet controlled by a wall switch to shut off electrical current completely.

In the case of aluminum wiring, the commission advises that an expert be called in if the homeowner is not thoroughly trained in electrical work. "Serious or fatal electric shock could result" otherwise, the agency said.

Homeowners are advised to call in an expert immediately if any of the following trouble signals develop: warm switch or receptacle face plate, distinctive odor of burning plastic or unexplained flickering of lights.

These are the other aluminum wiring tips:

—If the homeowner is not sure whether his home was wired with aluminum, call in an expert and ask him to check out the electrical connections.

—If switches and outlets must be replaced, use only devices labeled CO-ALR which are designed for aluminum wiring and have an expert do the work.

—An alternative method in new construction is use of a short piece of insulated copper wire between the aluminum wire and the switch or outlet.

'Tecumseh' Ready For Second Season

At the 1,678 seat Sugarloaf Mountain Amphitheatre, over one-hundred fifty skilled artists are feverishly preparing for the second season of "Tecumseh!"

After a successful premiere season, playwright Allan W. Eckart decided that his play must grow and change. The evolution of the script of "Tecumseh!" has been considerable, and is most likely the polished, finished product. Although minor changes might occur from season to season, it is doubtful that such sweeping changes will be made again.

The character of Tecumseh has been improved, to show a more distinct growth in him, as a human being and as a leader of his people. Mel Cobb, who has been so instrumental in the initial success of "Tecumseh!" returns to the title role.

The role of Tribal Historian has been written out of the drama. Granted, it had a unique charm and value; nonetheless it seemed to be an interruptive factor in the flow of the drama, hampering the audience involvement in the play. This year's transitions are much smoother, allowing the audience to get lost in the action.

Judge Blasts High Court Speed Award

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A Cincinnati judge who won an Ohio Supreme Court award for cleaning up his docket called it "a serious disservice to the cause of justice and to the bench."

Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge Gilbert Bettman added that the award for "outstanding judicial service" gives the public a "wholly erroneous concept of a judge's caliber."

Other judges on the same bench winning the awards were Lyle Castle and Robert V. Wood.

The award is given to judges the high court feels did a good job of keeping current their dockets since Dec. 31, 1973.

"It encourages the trial judges to believe that speed is more important than thoughtfulness, fairness and integrity," said Bettman.

"It places first that which should be last in evaluating a judge's merit."

Bettman said there are men on the bench in Ohio who may be in the "worst" in the speed category "but who in the eyes of all who have closely watched the courts would be rated among the best."

Each judge must make every effort to keep his docket current, however, Bettman said.

"But when we start rating getting rid of the docket before the law and before justice, it will indeed be a sad day for our country," he said.

Asked if the judge planned to refuse the award, Bettman said:

"No. It was mailed to me and I put it in a drawer."

"No. It was mailed to me and I put it in a drawer."

Tecumapese, has been added to the script. She is the sister of Tecumseh, Chiksika, and Tenskwtawa (the Prophet), and the wife of Wasegobah. She acts as a go-between for these characters as well as added new dimension to their roles.

And a new scene, of great historical importance has been added - a confrontation between Tecumseh and Gen. Harrison. A scene that graphically shows the gap between the white man and the Indian nation.

New stage areas have been added, a beautiful panorama of eleven stages skillfully blended in the surrounding forest. All eleven stage areas will be better utilized this year, with a direct result of more physical action. The man picked to direct the increased action is a specialist in stage movement and combat, Dr. Richard Nichols.

The premiere performance this year will be June twenty first with ceremonies beginning at 8:00 p.m. (EDT). Various dignitaries on the state and local level will be in attendance. John M. Mountain, Deputy Director of the Dept. of Economic and Community Development in Ohio, will speak briefly before the performance. The audience will have a chance to meet the cast of "Tecumseh!" after the 1974 premiere performance.

Soon the ancient and historic Sugarloaf Mountain will hear the roar of cannons and flintlocks, the galloping horses, cries of anger and anguish. For it is as the Shawnee legend says, "Tecumseh!" will return.

Miss Brenda Lee Turner Weds Francis Smallwood

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS W. SMALLWOOD

The wedding of Miss Brenda Lee Turner and Mr. Francis Winfield Smallwood took place at noon on June 9th at Community United Methodist Church in Circleville. The Rev. David Frazer officiated the double ring ceremony before the altar decorated with an arrangement of blue and white carnations and baby's breath, and candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Turner Jr., Campbell, N.Y. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Clyde Radabaugh, Route 5 and Mr. Francis Smallwood, 124 W. Franklin St., Circleville.

Miss Diana Timmons, organist, presented a program of nuptial selections preceding the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She selected for her wedding a formal length gown of white organza with an empire bodice and long full sleeves. Guipure lace outlined the high neckline and formed a redingote effect on the skirt that swept to a lace edged wateau train. Her tiered shoulder length veil of illusion flowed softly from a cluster of Venice lace petals trimmed with seed pearls.

The bride carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations, pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath on a white Bible carried by her mother for her wedding. Her only jewelry were cat's-eye gold earrings, a gift of the bridegroom.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Marge Rader, was attired in a blue formal length gown and carried a single blue carnation with matching streamers. Bridesmaids were Miss Cheri Peters and Miss Pat Davis, gowned as the honor attendant in pink and carried single pink carnations with matching streamers.

Mr. Dick Rader performed the duties of best man and Mr. Ronald Thompson and Mr. Ray Dulin were ushers. Master Matthew Allen Turner, brother of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Mrs. Turner wore a floor length aqua gown with beige accessories. Mrs. Radabaugh selected a floor length gown of black and white print with white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations and baby's breath.

A reception in the social rooms of the church immediately followed the ceremony. The three tiered wedding cake was decorated with blue and pink roses and topped with miniature bride and groom figures. The cake centered a lace covered table decorated with wedding bells. Hostesses were Miss Kim Graham and Miss Edra Welsh.

For a wedding trip to Cedar Point, the bride wore a red and white plaid pant suit. The couple now resides at 143 Lewis Ave., Circleville.

The new Mrs. Smallwood graduated from Salina Central High School in Salina, Kan., and is employed by the Department of Taxation in Columbus.

Mr. Smallwood, a graduate of Circleville High School, is currently a student at the Ohio University Branch in Chillicothe and employed by the Circleville Police Department.

Special guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dean of Kingston, grandparents of the bride.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

How To 'Double Up'

DEAR ABBY: Here is my story: After 34 years of marriage, my wife died. I bought a double plot-one for her and one for me when my time comes. I couldn't decide what kind of headstone I wanted for my wife's grave, so I put off buying one.

Meanwhile I met a woman and things started happening so fast I couldn't believe it. To make a long story short, I married her. In the meantime, my wife's headstone slipped my mind, so my married son got disgusted with me and he bought one and put it up. Then he told me to buy two more lots-one for myself and one for my new wife because he was sure his mother wouldn't want me buried next to her if I couldn't even wait three months to get married again.

Retired Teachers Hold Second Quarterly Meeting

Pickaway County Chapter of Ohio Retired Teachers Assn. held its second quarterly meeting Saturday at Pickaway Arms.

Mrs. J. Austin Dowden, vice president, presided. The program was presented by Mrs. Merlyn (Carolyn Walters) Seitz of Malvern, Ohio. She and her husband were Lutheran missionaries in Ethiopia for six years. She gave a brief history of education in Ethiopia saying that Emperor Haile Selassie had great influence in establishing schools. This program came to a halt during the Italian occupation when schools were the targets of Mussolini's bombers.

A teacher herself, Mrs. Seitz told of the great eagerness of the people to learn. Lacking books and printed material they use what we consider litter, such as candy wrappers etc. for reading lessons.

She showed pictures of various structures used for schools ranging from modern schools in Addis Ababa to crude buildings and even trees in rural areas. The children have the task of herding the livestock and took them along to school, walking long distances from their homes. The animals could be seen grazing in the background while the children attended class in the shade of a tree.

Mrs. Marian Tossey, director of District 6 of the ORTA, spoke of pending legislation having to do with teacher's pensions. George McDowell explained reasons for the change in health and hospitalization insurance from Blue Cross to Aetna. Howard Hosler presented tentative changes in the local chapter's constitution to be voted on at the September meeting. Dick Huffines presented to the group the American Family Cancer plan.

I asked him what he planned to do with the empty plot beside his mother, and he said he'd find some other dummy to bury there.

What should I do now?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: I'd buy another double plot-unless your present wife has already made plans to double up with someone else when her time comes.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old married man who has had this problem ever since I could tell the difference between a boy and a girl. You guessed it. I can't resist women. Maybe I should say the problem is that women can't resist ME. I'm a pretty good looking guy (I'm told) and have an athletic build and keep in shape, but the ladies tell me it's the sexy look in my eye that gets them.

I love my wife (we've been married for seven years and have two children but I can't leave other women alone. Right now I have something going with my best friend's wife and also with my wife's best friend. It's not a heavy love affair in either case, but it's fun.

In my defense, let me say I've never propositioned a woman in my life. They approach me, and I can't say no. Can you help me?

LADIES' MAN

DEAR MAN: I'm all choked up. You can say no if you want to. And you'd better start trying, before somebody does your wife a favor and tells her.

DEAR ABBY: After 32 years of marriage, I finally got up enough gumption to divorce my husband. Although I still cared for him, I couldn't take any more of his cruel and inhuman treatment.

One week after our divorce was final he married another woman. Now listen to this. On his honeymoon he sent ME a dozen roses with the following card: "To a lovely lady with love."

A few days later I received a menu from a resort hotel where he and I had spent our honeymoon. He had written on it: "Remember this place, Darling? Love," . . . and then his name.

This has been very upsetting to me. What do you make of it and what should I do about it?

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: Ignore it. But if he sends any more reminders of him or the past, write to him and ask him to please keep OUT of touch with you because you want to forget him. He sounds like a very cruel (or sick) man.

DEAR ABBY: A young woman wrote that she was in love with a fine young man but her mother didn't want her to marry him because he was too short. You suggested that one should measure a man from his eyebrows up. That isn't low enough. You must go to the base of his heart, for there you will find all of his emotions, including love, which is basic to a man's character.

INDIAN MILLS—Indian Mills is one of Ohio's most picturesque State Memorials.

GLACIAL GROOVES—Recent excavations at Glacial Grooves State Memorial have left more than 400 feet of the scoured limestone exposed.

The Ohio Historical Society tour through Indian Hills, Hayes Memorial, and Glacial Grooves include two national firsts and a giant relic of the ice age.

Nestled in a small valley along the Sandusky River, on County Road 47 north of Upper Sandusky, stands Indian Mill, America's first museum of milling in an original mill structure.

It became known as Indian Mill because its predecessor gristmill and sawmill, located 300 feet upstream from the present site, were built in 1820 by the U. S. Government in appreciation of the local Wyandot Indians' loyalty during the War of 1812. A government appointed miller would grind flour and cornmeal for the Indians until they were moved to Kansas in 1843. After the Indians left, those mills and the present structure passed through the hands of many owners who operated them for the neighboring farmers. Finally, the Ohio Historical Society received the mill and opened it as a museum of milling in 1968.

A few of the walnut beams from the first mill still stand today at the present site, bearing the rough marks of the water powered saw that shaped them from rough logs. The rotation of the millstones could produce enough vibration to literally shake mills apart. To deal with the problem, Indian Mill was built with cross trusses, secured with steel rods and bolts which were forged on the site and assembled while they were still hot.

Indian Mill used a water turbine, rather than a waterwheel, to rotate the millstone. The water level in the Sandusky River has dropped so far over the years that it's no longer possible to get enough power to actually operate the mill. Instead, the mill has been brought to life with numerous exhibits placed around the original mill machinery. Even the miller's office has been restored and serves as a display area for the history of milling from prehistoric man to the present.

Across the river, you can picnic in a small park operated by the Wyandot County Historical Society. Here, surrounded by tall trees and the gentle roar of water pouring over the wooden dam, you'll want to pause for a moment to take a snapshot of this beautiful setting.

North of Indian Mill, off Ohio Route 53 on Hayes Ave. in Fremont, is the home of Rutherford B. Hayes, the 19th President of the United States. On a beautiful 25-acre wooded site stands the Hayes' home, his tomb and the Hayes Museum and Library, America's first Presidential Library.

The six entrance ways to Hayes State Memorial are protected by a set of impressive iron gates which once stood at the entrances to the White House before and during the Hayes administration.

A section of the famous Sandusky-Scioto Indian Trail winds for nearly one-half mile through a grove south of the house. Nearby, on a quiet wooded knoll by the trail, is the humble Vermont granite monument that marks the final resting place of President and Mrs. Hayes.

The Hayes home is an elegant 19th century mansion, furnished with the treasures of the Hayes family. An unhurried tour through the formal drawing room, the shelved study, the state dining room and the countless bedrooms, each decorated in a different decor, is like stepping back into another time when the pace of life was far slower than today.

The Museum at Hayes Memorial displays a collection of the personal possessions of the President and his family; their presidential carriage, children's toys hand made by the White House carpenters, Mrs. Hayes reception gowns, the Presidential dinnerware and many other exhibits on the life and presidency of Rutherford B. Hayes.

Next door to the museum is the nation's first Presidential Library where Hayes' correspondence, scrapbooks, photographs, paintings and personal book collection have been preserved. Altogether, the library contains more than 80,000 volumes and almost a million manuscripts, available to researchers all over the world.

To reach the final stop in this group of Yesterday Getaways, you must leave your car at the foot of Columbus Ave. in Sandusky and travel by ferryboat to the northwest corner of Kelley's Island to Glacial Grooves State Memorial.

Glacial Grooves are the largest accessible glacier scratches in the world. The gentle, sweeping curves and abrupt, violent angles of the grooves were ground into the limestone bedrock of the island by the Wisconsin Glacier almost 20,000 years ago.

When you reach the island, you can rent a bike for the short ride to the walkway that surrounds this sprawling expanse of exposed rock. All new exhibits have been installed on the site and a summer naturalist is available to answer your questions on this dramatic natural wonder.

Indian Mill is open May through October from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. from Wednesday through Sunday. Hayes' home is open from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday through Tuesday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday. The Museum is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Glacial Grooves is open daily.

For a free booklet on Ohio's Yesterday Getaways write the Public Information Office, the Ohio Historical Center, Columbus, Ohio 43211.

A small admission is charged at Indian Mill and Hayes Memorial.

INDIAN MILLS—Indian Mills is one of Ohio's most picturesque State Memorials.

GLACIAL GROOVES—Recent excavations at Glacial Grooves State Memorial have left more than 400 feet of the scoured limestone exposed.

The Ohio Historical Society tour through Indian Mills, Hayes Memorial, and Glacial Grooves include two national firsts and a giant relic of the ice age.

Nestled in a small valley along the Sandusky River, on County Road 47 north of Upper Sandusky, stands Indian Mill, America's first museum of milling in an original mill structure.

It became known as Indian Mill because its predecessor gristmill and sawmill, located 300 feet upstream from the present site, were built in 1820 by the U. S. Government in appreciation of the local Wyandot Indians' loyalty during the War of 1812. A government appointed miller would grind flour and cornmeal for the Indians until they were moved to Kansas in 1843. After the Indians left, those mills and the present structure passed through the hands of many owners who operated them for the neighboring farmers. Finally, the Ohio Historical Society received the mill and opened it as a museum of milling in 1968.

A few of the walnut beams from the first mill still stand today at the present site, bearing the rough marks of the water powered saw that shaped them from rough logs. The rotation of the millstones could produce enough vibration to literally shake mills apart. To deal with the problem, Indian Mill was built with cross trusses, secured with steel rods and bolts which were forged on the site and assembled while they were still hot.

Indian Mill used a water turbine, rather than a waterwheel, to rotate the millstone. The water level in the Sandusky River has dropped so far over the years that it's no longer possible to get enough power to actually operate the mill. Instead, the mill has been brought to life with numerous exhibits placed around the original mill machinery. Even the miller's office has been restored and serves as a display area for the history of milling from prehistoric man to the present.

Across the river, you can picnic in a small park operated by the Wyandot County Historical Society. Here, surrounded by tall trees and the gentle roar of water pouring over the wooden dam, you'll want to pause for a moment to take a snapshot of this beautiful setting.

North of Indian Mill, off Ohio Route 53 on Hayes Ave. in Fremont, is the home of Rutherford B. Hayes, the 19th President of the United States. On a beautiful 25-acre wooded site stands the Hayes' home, his tomb and the Hayes Museum and Library, America's first Presidential Library.

The six entrance ways to Hayes State Memorial are protected by a set of impressive iron gates which once stood at the entrances to the White House before and during the Hayes administration.

A section of the famous Sandusky-Scioto Indian Trail winds for nearly one-half mile through a grove south of the house. Nearby, on a quiet wooded knoll by the trail, is the humble Vermont granite monument that marks the final resting place of President and Mrs. Hayes.

The Hayes home is an elegant 19th century mansion, furnished with the treasures of the Hayes family. An unhurried tour through the formal drawing room, the shelved study, the state dining room and the countless bedrooms, each decorated in a different decor, is like stepping back into another time when the pace of life was far slower than today.

The Museum at Hayes Memorial displays a collection of the personal possessions of the President and his family; their presidential carriage, children's toys hand made by the White House carpenters, Mrs. Hayes reception gowns, the Presidential dinnerware and many other exhibits on the life and presidency of Rutherford B. Hayes.

Next door to the museum is the nation's first Presidential Library where Hayes' correspondence, scrapbooks, photographs, paintings and personal book collection have been preserved. Altogether, the library contains more than 80,000 volumes and almost a million manuscripts, available to researchers all over the world.

Accidents Injure Four Teen-agers

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies investigated two early morning accidents leaving one person in serious condition in Mercy Hospital, Columbus.

Eighteen-year-old Bradley D. Black, Route 2, Ashville, received a severe head laceration and skull fracture in a single-truck accident 7:30 a.m. Saturday, on the Circleville-Winchester Road.

According to the preliminary report taken by Deputy James Fite, Black was driving north on the Circleville-Winchester Road when he failed to negotiate a curve.

Going off the left side of the road, the pickup rolled over before coming to rest.

Black was thrown out of the truck. He was admitted to Mercy Hospital, Columbus.

Three Pickaway County teen-agers received minor injuries in a single-car accident, 2:30 a.m. Saturday on Randle Road.

Jeffrey A. Walisa, 19, 1238 S. Pickaway St., was driving west on Randle Road, attempting to make a left hand turn onto the Justus O'Neal Road.

The auto slid in loose gravel going into a ditch.

Receiving minor injuries in the accident were passengers: Jeffrey L. Keener, 17, and Judy Harr, 18, both of 710 Northridge Road.

Evidence Mounts On Kissinger Role

WASHINGTON (AP)—A second member of the House Judiciary Committee has said the panel has evidence contradicting sworn testimony by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger about his role in national security wiretapping.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., said Friday that the evidence shows Kissinger ordered the telephone taps. "When the taps are made public the country will know he is guilty," Brooks said.

Another committee member, Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., said this week that the committee has positive proof that Kissinger initiated the wiretaps, despite the secretary's sworn denial. Meanwhile, Sen. J.W. Fulbright urged the Senate to wait to see the evidence before arriving at any decisions on the part played by Kissinger in the wiretaps.

Kissinger testified before the committee last September that he named persons who had access to national security information that was leaked to the news media. But he said he did not order wiretaps of 13 National Security Council staff members and four newsmen.

Recent news reports have told of a larger Kissinger role in the wiretapping.

In Beaumont, Tex., Brooks said, "I hope the Judiciary Committee will release FBI records, tapes of White House conversations and transcripts of those conversations so the public can be fully aware of whatever part Mr. Kissinger had in the selection of people who were to be bugged.... I think when that is released it will let everybody know what his part was."

Kissinger on Tuesday asked the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to take another look into his September testimony and the committee is preparing to do so. Kissinger said he would resign if his name is not cleared.

Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Friday he feels a Senate majority was premature in approving a resolution lauding Kissinger's integrity.

Prof. Defends Document On Vitamins

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire's criticism of recommended daily allowances of vitamins and minerals plays into the hands of charlatans and quacks, a University of Wisconsin professor says.

In a Senate speech this week, the Wisconsin Democrat called the recommended daily allowances unscientific and said the group which drafted them was "influenced, dominated and financed in part by the food industry."

But Alfred E. Harper, a biochemistry professor who heads the University of Wisconsin's Nutritional Sciences Department and was chairman of the group which drew up the standards, dissents.

"Statements such as those you have made are irresponsible," Harper said in a telegram to Proxmire. "They play into the hands of every charlatan and quack whose aim is to convince the average person that his or her diet is inadequate and that his or her health depends on the use of unneeded, overpriced vitamin pills and food supplements."

Harper told newsmen Friday his committee consisted of professors from five universities, representatives of the U.S. agriculture Department and the National Institutes of Health, but no representatives of the food industry.

The study was paid for by the National Institutes of Health, Harper said.

Set Elections At Boys State

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP) — Today was election day at Buckeye Boys State.

The 1,350 high school seniors participating in the exercise in government at Ashland College voted for Federalist and Nationalist party candidates, using voting machines provided by the county board of election.

The two mythical parties met in convention Friday to nominate candidates and draft platforms.

The American Legion-sponsored program continues through next week with Gov. John Gilligan and Chief Justice C. William O'Neill among the speakers.

Cloudy and cooler tonight with a chance of showers early tonight. Lows in mid 50s. Partly cloudy and cooler Sunday. Highs around 70.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ohio had showers or thundershowers over most sections Friday night and further shower activity is likely to be scattered around the state today. That will be ahead of a cold front situated Saturday morning from a low pressure over Lake Superior, southwestward to Wisconsin and Missouri.

The low pressure is forecast to remain nearly stationary for the next 24 to 48 hours, but the cold front is expected to move east of Ohio Saturday night.

After the front, cooler weather Sunday will continue with temperatures below normal for the first part of the week. Low readings for tonight will be in the 50s, along with considerable cloudiness and a diminishing chance of showers.

6 Delinquent, 5 Traffic Cases Heard By Cline

Six youths charged with delinquency and four traffic offenders headed the list of cases heard in Pickaway Juvenile Court by Judge Guy G. Cline this past week.

Dale E. Cook, 17, Route 2, Ashville, appeared on a charge of failure to maintain assured clear distance ahead filed by Sgt. Neal Staten of the Highway Patrol. The court fined Cook $10 and suspended his license for 17 days for striking another car in the rear.

Further order of the court included a suspension of the fine and an order for the defendant to attend traffic school.

The Williamsport Chief of Police cited James R. Wright, 18, Route 1, Orient, into court for making unnecessary noise. Wright was fined $10 and ordered to pay the court costs and attend traffic school.

Excessive noise was also the charge against Craig P. Hutchinson, 17, 223 S. Scioto St. The case had been transferred to the Pickaway County Court from Franklin County and brought a $10 suspended fine to Hutchinson. The court ordered him to pay the court costs and to attend traffic school.

Donald A. Young Jr., 17, appeared on a speeding charge filed by the Highway Patrol. Judge Cline suspended a $10 fine and ordered him to attend traffic school. His license was also suspended for one month.

A 16-year-old Route 1, Lockbourne boy was placed on three years probation for excessive absence. The same sentence was given to a 17-year-old Route 4 boy and a 16-year-old Route 1, Ashville boy, both charged with excessive absence.

Sheriff's Deputy James Deal arrested a 16-year-old Ashville boy for grand theft. The boy appeared for stealing tires and wheels and was placed on probation for three years for the offense.

A 16-year-old Circleville girl appeared before the court on a charge of possession of a narcotic filed by the city police. She was placed on probation until her 18th birthday on the condition that she cooperate with the court and the police in prosecution of any person in any allied case dealing with drugs.

Part of the fine and the jail sentence was suspended against 20-year-old Bruce Rutherford, 525 E. Mound St. Rutherford was charged with contributing to the unruliness of a minor and was fined $100 with $75 suspended. All except one weekend of a six-month jail sentence was suspended by the court and Rutherford was placed on three years probation. The court also ordered him not to associate with the minors involved in the case.

Municipal Court News

Wilmer J. Muck, 54, Amanda, stop sign violation, $24.

Richard J. Harris, 33, Route 1, Mt. Sterling, driving while intoxicated, $150 and costs, 30 days in jail, license suspended six months.

Charles Melvin Poling, Tarlton, public intoxication, $15 and costs, fine suspended; resisting arrest, $50 and costs, $25 of fine suspended.

Jeffrey C. Carithers, 524 N. Court St., trespassing, $10 and costs.

Ohio had showers or thundershowers over most sections Friday night and further shower activity is likely to be scattered around the state today. That will be ahead of a cold front situated Saturday morning from a low pressure over Lake Superior, southwestward to Wisconsin and Missouri.

The low pressure is forecast to remain nearly stationary for the next 24 to 48 hours, but the cold front is expected to move east of Ohio Saturday night.

After the front, cooler weather Sunday will continue with temperatures below normal for the first part of the week. Low readings for tonight will be in the 50s, along with considerable cloudiness and a diminishing chance of showers.

6 Delinquent, 5 Traffic Cases Heard By Cline

Six youths charged with delinquency and four traffic offenders headed the list of cases heard in Pickaway Juvenile Court by Judge Guy G. Cline this past week.

Dale E. Cook, 17, Route 2, Ashville, appeared on a charge of failure to maintain assured clear distance ahead filed by Sgt. Neal Staten of the Highway Patrol. The court fined Cook $10 and suspended his license for 17 days for striking another car in the rear. Further order of the court included a suspension of the fine and an order for the defendant to attend traffic school.

The Williamsport Chief of Police cited James R. Wright, 18, Route 1, Orient, into court for making unnecessary noise. Wright was fined $10 and ordered to pay the court costs and attend traffic school.

Excessive noise was also the charge against Craig P. Hutchinson, 17, 223 S. Scioto St. The case had been transferred to the Pickaway County Court from Franklin County and brought a $10 suspended fine to Hutchinson. The court ordered him to pay the court costs and to attend traffic school.

Donald A. Young Jr., 17, appeared on a speeding charge filed by the Highway Patrol. Judge Cline suspended a $10 fine and ordered him to attend traffic school. His license was also suspended for one month.

A 16-year-old Route 1, Lockbourne boy was placed on three years probation for excessive absence. The same sentence was given to a 17-year-old Route 4 boy and a 16-year-old Route 1, Ashville boy, both charged with excessive absence.

Sheriff's Deputy James Deal arrested a 16-year-old Ashville boy for grand theft. The boy appeared for stealing tires and wheels and was placed on probation for three years for the offense.

A 16-year-old Circleville girl appeared before the court on a charge of possession of a narcotic filed by the city police. She was placed on probation until her 18th birthday on the condition that she cooperate with the court and the police in prosecution of any person in any allied case dealing with drugs.

Part of the fine and the jail sentence was suspended against 20-year-old Bruce Rutherford, 525 E. Mound St. Rutherford was charged with contributing to the unruliness of a minor and was fined $100 with $75 suspended. All except one weekend of a six-month jail sentence was suspended by the court and Rutherford was placed on three years probation. The court also ordered him not to associate with the minors involved in the case.

All except four weekends were suspended of a 60-day detention ordered for a 17-year-old Route 4, boy. The boy was charged with excessive absence. A sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission was suspended on condition the boy be either in the National Guards or in school at the beginning of the 1974-75 school term. He was also placed on probation for a period of three years.

Five cases were dismissed after the subjects have served their probation. Two of the cases involved Teays Valley boys charged with public indecency when they streaked around the school building. Another dismissed case involved an adult charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor by engaging in an act of sexual perversion. The case against the 10-year-old boy involved who was charged with a sex offense was also dismissed after the three-year probation was served.

Two cases against an Adelphi boy who was placed on probation for breaking and entering and shoplifting were also dismissed after he has served his probation.

Prof. Defends Document On Vitamins

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire's criticism of recommended daily allowances of vitamins and minerals plays into the hands of charlatans and quacks, a University of Wisconsin professor says.

In a Senate speech this week, the Wisconsin Democrat called the recommended daily allowances unscientific and said the group which drafted them was "influenced, dominated and financed in part by the food industry."

But Alfred E. Harper, a biochemistry professor who heads the University of Wisconsin's Nutritional Sciences Department and was chairman of the group which drew up the standards, dissents.

"Statements such as those you have made are irresponsible," Harper said in a telegram to Proxmire. "They play into the hands of every charlatan and quack whose aim is to convince the average person that his or her diet is inadequate and that his or her health depends on the use of unneeded, overpriced vitamin pills and food supplements."

Harper told newsmen Friday his committee consisted of professors from five universities, representatives of the U.S. agriculture Department and the National Institutes of Health, but no representatives of the food industry.

The study was paid for by the National Institutes of Health, Harper said.

Set Elections At Boys State

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP) — Today was election day at Buckeye Boys State.

The 1,350 high school seniors participating in the exercise in government at Ashland College voted for Federalist and Nationalist party candidates, using voting machines provided by the county board of election.

The two mythical parties met in convention Friday to nominate candidates and draft platforms.

The American Legion-sponsored program continues through next week with Gov. John Gilligan and Chief Justice C. William O'Neill among the speakers.

Aluminum Bats Come Under Fire

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Coach Rod Dedeaux of Southern California wants to take the klink and klank out of college baseball.

The object of the outcry by Dedeaux — and many other college coaches — is aluminum bats, used this year for the first time.

"The bats are changing the game," says Dedeaux, "and the question is, is it good for the game?"

Aluminum bats made by about only five manufacturers were legal in college baseball this season. But the rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association approved the use of any aluminum bat in 1975, regardless of the manufacturer.

Dedeaux, a 33-year veteran of college ball, says the new bats have increased hitting averages, reduced low scoring games, created a false "hitting sense" among players and hiked fielding injuries.

But most of the coaches and players in the 28th College World Series here feel the bats are a boon to amateur baseball.

"I like them," says Southern Illinois Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones. "They have really helped the hitter and I don't think they have hurt the defense any."

All but one of the eight teams that qualified for the College World Series came to the classic hitting more than .300.

Also, 47 of 72 players who started in the series were .300 hitters or better — including six with averages above .400.

And at least 90 per cent of the top hitters use aluminum bats.

Miami Coach Ron Fraser, still undecided about the aluminum bats, feels they help a ball hit off the handle.

"Normally it would break a wooden bat, but you can get a hit off that type of ball with an aluminum bat," he says.

Economy is often mentioned in support of the new bats.

"It may cost $50 for a dozen wooden bats, and you go through 20 dozen in a season — and that's conservative," notes Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson.

"Compare that to aluminum bats, which sell for about $18 for a good one — or $216 a dozen. It's easy for a dozen to last a season or you may need only a half dozen. That's a saving of maybe $800 or so. For schools with limited budgets, that's a big plus," he explains.

Lineups Set For All-Star Cage Game

MARION, Ohio (AP)—Coaches have announced starting lineups for tonight's 15th annual Ohio high school basketball All-Star game.

The series is tied with the North and South squads each claiming seven victories. The South won last year, 85-83.

Tonight's game begins at 8:30 at Marion's Veterans Memorial Coliseum.

Starting for the North are guards Frank Steele of Toledo Scott and Scott Ballinger of Marion Pleasant; forwards Tim Joyce of Youngstown Ursuline and Larry Harris of Lorain Clearview, Associated Press Class "A" Player of the Year, and center Lawrence Boston of Cleveland John Kennedy High School.

Steele and Joyce will co-captain the North squad.

Starting for the South are Guards Mark Bayless of Chillicothe and Judd Wood of Columbus Northland; forwards Norvain Morgan of Trotwood Madison and Terry Burris of Whitehall, and center Randy Ayers of Springfield Field.

Ayres and Morgan will co-captain the South squad.

Buck Adams of Toledo Scott, Jack Van Reeth of West Holmes and Duane Miller of Dalton will coach the north, while Keith Merrin of Mount Vernon, Dave Scheetz of Columbus Mohawk and Phil Dubbs of Pittsburg Franklin-Monroe will coach the South.

Twins Blast Tribe 8-2

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Minnesota Twins pitcher Joe Decker says he hasn't found his rhythm yet, but it looked like he had it Friday night against the Cleveland Indians.

Decker gave up five scattered hits, struck out five and walked two and was in control all evening as the Twins downed the Indians 8-2 in an American League baseball contest.

"Sometimes my pitches are great," Decker said. "And then the next one just slows up and doesn't go where I want it. It's my rhythm. That involves a lot of things—ball release, coordinating your arm and body motion, there are a lot of things I have to bring together."

"I still feel that I have to get my momentum going this season," said the 27-year-old right-hander, who is now 7-4.

Decker was helped along to his victory by a seven-run third inning, which was embellished by Eric Soderholm's grand slam home run.

New York state received more than $36 million from harness racing at Yonkers, N.Y., track for 1973.

Big Red Inning Rips Phils

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds gave Don Gullett a comfortable lead, but the hard-throwing lefthander gave up two home runs, both to Mike Schmidt, as the Reds beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-4 Friday night.

"He's so different from last year," said Gullett of the third baseman from nearby Dayton, Ohio, who managed only a .196 batting average in 1973.

"He's unbelievably strong. On the second home run he didn't have stride, just hit it with his hands."

"I know I'm making a lot of mistakes and home runs can beat you. The majority of runs I've given up have been on homers," Gullett said.

Gullett (7-4) has given up 11 home

runs in 13 starts.

"Sure he gives up home runs," said Manager George "Sparky" Anderson. "I'm not concerned with it. When you throw that hard all the batter has to do is make contact."

Anderson praised Schmidt who has 16 home runs and 22 runs batted in. Eight of the four-baggers have come in June.

"Ron Cey, of Los Angeles, is the only third baseman in the left right now close to Schmidt offensively," said Anderson.

"I'm just being more patient," said Schmidt, although he admitted some nervousness because his family was among the 25,238 in Riverfront Stadium. "I'm not chasing everything. I'm looking for a pitch I hit."

Philadelphia took the lead in the second when Bob Boone singled Mike Anderson, who had doubled. The Reds tied it the same inning on Gullett's sacrifice fly scoring Terry Crowley.

Schmidt hit his first homer the next inning, then the dam broke for Phils pitcher Ron Schueler (3-7).

Joe Morgan doubled and scored on John Bench's single. Tony Perez singled, Dan Driessen bunted and Schueler threw wild to allow Bench to score. Concepcion also sacrificed and Pete Rose singled two more runs.

"We don't sacrifice much. That's the first time we've bunted twice in one inning in my five years here," Anderson said.

Cincinnati has only sacrificed 21 times in 57 games this year.

In the fifth inning Schmidt belted his second homer, scoring behind Larry Bowa to end the scoring.

"The error by Schueler on Driessen's bunt really hurt us," said Phils Manager Danny Ozark. "That set up the whole inning."

Jack Billingham, 6-4, faces Jim Lonborg, 7-5, tonight for the second of the three-game series between Cincinnati and Philadelphia.

The game is preceded by an Old Timers contest.

Sue Roberts Leads LPGA At Medina

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — Sue Roberts insists it won't happen again, a collapse after leading a Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

The first round leader Friday of the $42,500 Medina Open with a three-under-par 69 grimaced, recounting her last round disaster in the 1971 St. Petersburg, Fla., tournament.

"I led for two rounds. In the last round, I played with a slow group. We were warned once. I tried to speed up my shots, shot 78 and finished back in the back," said the Columbus, Ohio, blonde, still winless in her sixth LPGA campaign.

"I think I'm better prepared mentally now. I'm just going out and do my best," she promised for today's second round over the 6,200-yard Weymouth Valley Country Club course.

The 25-year-old, never better than fourth in an LPGA tournament, faced the ominous job of warding off red-hot JoAnne Carner, one shot off the pace at 70.

"I was just very consistent today. I hit 15 greens and took only 30 putts," said Miss Roberts, the winner of less than $6,000 in 1974.

Also, 47 of 72 players who started in the series were .300 hitters or better — including six with averages above .400.

And at least 90 per cent of the top hitters use aluminum bats.

Miami Coach Ron Fraser, still undecided about the aluminum bats, feels they help a ball hit off the handle.

"Normally it would break a wooden bat, but you can get a hit off that type of ball with an aluminum bat," he says.

Economy is often mentioned in support of the new bats.

"It may cost $50 for a dozen wooden bats, and you go through 20 dozen in a season — and that's conservative," notes Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson.

"Compare that to aluminum bats, which sell for about $18 for a good one — or $216 a dozen. It's easy for a dozen to last a season or you may need only a half dozen. That's a saving of maybe $800 or so. For schools with limited budgets, that's a big plus," he explains.

Lineups Set For All-Star Cage Game

MARION, Ohio (AP)—Coaches have announced starting lineups for tonight's 15th annual Ohio high school basketball All-Star game.

The series is tied with the North and South squads each claiming seven victories. The South won last year, 85-83.

Tonight's game begins at 8:30 at Marion's Veterans Memorial Coliseum.

Starting for the North are guards Frank Steele of Toledo Scott and Scott Ballinger of Marion Pleasant; forwards Tim Joyce of Youngstown Ursuline and Larry Harris of Lorain Clearview, Associated Press Class "A" Player of the Year, and center Lawrence Boston of Cleveland John Kennedy High School.

Steele and Joyce will co-captain the North squad.

Starting for the South are Guards Mark Bayless of Chillicothe and Judd Wood of Columbus Northland; forwards Norvain Morgan of Trotwood Madison and Terry Burris of Whitehall, and center Randy Ayers of Springfield North.

Ayres and Morgan will co-captain the South squad.

Beck Adams of Toledo Scott, Jack Van Rucht of West Holmes and Duane Miller of Dalton will coach the north, while Keith Merrin of Mount Vernon, Dave Scheetz of Columbus Mohawk and Phil Dubbs of Pittsburgh Franklin-Monroe will coach the South.

Twins Blast Tribe 8-2

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Minnesota Twins pitcher Joe Decker says he hasn't found his rhythm yet, but it looked like he had it Friday night against the Cleveland Indians.

Decker gave up five scattered hits, struck out five and walked two and was in control all evening as the Twins downed the Indians 8-2 in an American League baseball contest.

"Sometimes my pitches are great," Decker said. "And then the next one just slows up and doesn't go where I want it. It's my rhythm. That involves a lot of things—ball release, coordinating your arm and body motion, there are a lot of things I have to bring together."

"I still feel that I have to get my momentum going this season," said the 27-year-old right-hander, who is now 7-4.

Decker was helped along to his victory by a seven-run third inning, which was embellished by Eric Soderholm's grand slam home run.

New York state received more than $36 million from harness racing at Yonkers, N.Y., track for 1973.

Big Red Inning Rips Phils

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds gave Don Gullett a comfortable lead, but the hard-throwing lefthander gave up two home runs, both to Mike Schmidt, as the Reds beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-4 Friday night.

"He's so different from last year," said Gullett of the third baseman from nearby Dayton, Ohio, who managed only a .196 batting average in 1973.

"He's unbelievably strong. On the second home run he didn't have stride, just hit it with his hands."

"I know I'm making a lot of mistakes and home runs can beat you. The majority of runs I've given up have been on homers," Gullett said.

Gullett (7-4) has given up 11 home

runs in 13 starts.

"Sure he gives up home runs," said Manager George "Sparky" Anderson. "I'm not concerned with it. When you throw that hard all the batter has to do is make contact."

Anderson praised Schmidt who has 16 home runs and 22 runs batted in. Eight of the four-baggers have come in June.

"Ron Cey, of Los Angeles, is the only third baseman in the left right now close to Schmidt offensively," said Anderson.

"I'm just being more patient," said Schmidt, although he admitted some nervousness because his family was among the 25,238 in Riverfront Stadium. "I'm not chasing everything. I'm looking for a pitch I hit."

Philadelphia took the lead in the second when Bob Boone singled Mike Anderson, who had doubled. The Reds tied it the same inning on Gullett's sacrifice fly scoring Terry Crowley. Schmidt hit his first homer the next inning, then the dam broke for Phils pitcher Ron Schueler (3-7).

Joe Morgan doubled and scored on John Bench's single. Tony Perez singled, Dan Driessen bunted and Schueler threw wild to allow Bench to score. Concepcion also sacrificed and Pete Rose singled two more runs.

"We don't sacrifice much. That's the first time we've bunted twice in one inning in my five years here," Anderson said.

Cincinnati has only sacrificed 21 times in 57 games this year.

In the fifth inning Schmidt belted his second homer, scoring behind Larry Bowa to end the scoring.

"The error by Schueler on Driessen's bunt really hurt us," said Phils Manager Danny Ozark. "That set up the whole inning."

Jack Billingham, 6-4, faces Jim Lonborg, 7-5, tonight for the second of the three-game series between Cincinnati and Philadelphia.

The game is preceded by an Old Timers contest.

MOSQUITO LEAGUE

Circleville Mfg. 16, Circle Auto Parts 14

Tommy Tomlinson plastered every pitch thrown at him as he tagged two home runs, two doubles, and a single.

Jeff McGowan and Charles Moorehead had a triple, double, and a single. Randy Huffer had two triples and two singles, and Erin McConnell had two doubles.

Bob Lutz had a triple while Brad Miller and Brian Oberly had doubles. Oberly and Lutz were the losing pitchers and Randy Huffer and Ralph Jones were the winners.

Hill Imp. 23, PPG 7

Mark Humphrey threw a one-hitter and added four hits to pace Hill's to their victory.

Shawn Bailey added a triple and three doubles while Freddie Pyles had a triple and four singles. Mike Bloomfield added a double and a single and Paul Ricky Elswick added two singles.

Humphrey and Bailey combined for the win walking 10, striking out nine, and giving up just one hit.

Wellington, Lewis, Mogan pitched for the losers giving up 11 walks, five strikeouts, and 23 hits.

Jerry Uhl had a triple for the losers' only hit. The game was called after four innings.

FOPA 15, Mac's 12

Kevin Weaver had a homer and a triple and Bernard Lockard added two triples and one double to pace the attack.

Tom Brungs added a double to the winners cause.

Greg Greeno hit a homer and a triple and James Bevins had a homer and a double.

Lockard and Weaver shared the victory giving up nine walks, seven strikeouts, and nine hits.

Lewis, Bevins, and Moore shared the loss walking eight, fanning 13, and allowing 13 hits.

LITTLE LEAGUE MAJORS

BPO Elks 7, Bingmans 3

Craig Gifford fired a four-hitter to pace the Elks' win. He walked three and fanned 10 batters.

Brad Willoughby went the distance to take the loss. He allowed seven hits, walked three, and fanned nine.

Brad Allen socked the only extra base hit for the winners, a double. Tim Woods had two singles.

Tracy Wagner homered for Bingmans and Brad Fox collected a double.

BABERUTH LEAGUE

GE 8, DuPont 6

DuPont tallied a single run in the last of the seventh inning to send the game into extra innings, and GE finally won the tilt with two unanswered runs in the top of the 10th frame.

Brent Mancini combined with Herb Lutz for the win. Mancini walked nine batters and fanned 16, while Lutz struck out a pair. They allowed only four hits.

Doug Clark and Mearle Logan were the DuPont pitchers, combining for 12 hits.

Clark walked three and fanned seven, while Logan issued six walks and fanned 11 batters.

Only extra base blows were doubles by Mancini and Bob Fuller of GE.

TRI-COUNTY MOSQUITO

H & J Farms 20, Saltcreek 10

The Farmmen unlimbered their bats to pound out the lopsided win.

Russel Boldozer tagged a homerun and two triples, Terry Collins pounded a homer, two triples, and a double,

Doug Pontius tagged a homer, triple, and double, Mark Willis had a triple and a double, and David Cooper and Eric Evans had doubles.

Valentine led the Saltcreek attack with a double.

TRI-COUNTY PONY

Logan Elm Village 19, Hamilton Twp. 22

Crist and Calton were the beneficiaries of the 19-run LE Village attack. They each walked a batter and combined to fan 10.

Strehle belted a homerun for the winners, Pontius added a triple and double, Cave had two doubles, and Fouch tagged a double.

Arriagia, Rice, and Joiner paraded to the mound for Hamilton Twp., allowing 11 walks and fanning eight batters.

Arriagia pounded out a triple for the losers.

PCC Juniors Place 4th In SEOGA

Pickaway Country Club finished fourth in the seven-team South East Ohio Golf Association junior match with a score of 323.

Cambridge won the tourney with a 313 mark. Hocking Hills had 319, Gallipolis had 320, Ironton had 325, Fairgreens had 328, and Athens had 341.

Medalist was Tommy Young of the Gallipolis team who fired a 74.

Jeff Spires led the Pickaway team with a 75. Mark McFadden and Jeff Bohenko fired 81s, Scott Harmount had an 89, and Keith Sanders carded an 86.

Men's Slo-Pitch Tourney Set

Eagles Youth League team of Chillicothe will sponsor its 5th annual 4th of July Tournament June 29, 30 and July 3, 4.

Entry fee is $40. plus $8 for any non ASA sanctioned team.

Trophies will be presented to the first four teams plus individual trophies to the winners. Drawings will be held 7:30 at diamond No. one in Yocantee Park, Chillicothe.

Teams need not be present but the entry fee must be paid.

The tournament will be held on the VA diamond and the city park diamonds.

Entries should be sent to Lamoine "Bud" Ryan, 1011 Gilmore St., Chillicothe (775-3571) or David Quincel, Route 5, Box 52, 414 James Rd., Chillicothe (663-2209.)

Doc McBean Wins Scioto Feature

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Doc McBean made his move in the middle of the stretch and edged past favored Keystone Mite to capture the featured race at Scioto Downs Friday night in 2:02 3-5.

The winner paid $19.80, $3.80 and $2.20. Keystone Mite returned $2.60 and $2.20 for second and Smart Noble, $2.20 for show.

Sue Roberts Leads LPGA At Medina

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — Sue Roberts insists it won't happen again, a collapse after leading a Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

The first round leader Friday of the $42,500 Medina Open with a three-under-par 69 grimaced, recounting her last round disaster in the 1971 St. Petersburg, Fla., tournament.

"I led for two rounds. In the last round, I played with a slow group. We were warned once. I tried to speed up my shots, shot 78 and finished back in the back," said the Columbus, Ohio, blonde, still winless in her sixth LPGA campaign.

"I think I'm better prepared mentally now. I'm just going out and do my best," she promised for today's second round over the 6,200-yard Weymouth Valley Country Club course.

The 25-year-old, never better than fourth in an LPGA tournament, faced the ominous job of warding off red-hot JoAnne Carner, one shot off the pace at 70.

"I was just very consistent today. I hit 15 greens and took only 30 putts," said Miss Roberts, the winner of less than $6,000 in 1974.

What would I give to clasp his hand
His loving face to see
Or hear him call me kid again
That meant so much to me
My dear saviour knows my lonely heart
And the emptiness that I feel,
But thank God I will see him some sweet day
And be with him throughout eternity

In Memoriam

In memory of Chester Ramey on Father's Day.
Dad you left a beautiful memory. And a sorrow too great to be told. But for us who loved and lost you. Your memory will never grow old. God called you home to rest. Because Daddy you were one of the very best.
Sadly missed by Sherry, Gary
And Jerri Lynn

In memory of Emmitt Toole who passed away June 15th 1965.
What would I give to clasp his hand. His loving face to see. For hear him call me kid again. That meant so much to me. My dear saviour knows my lonely heart.
And the emptiness that I feel.
But thank God I will see him some sweet day.
And be with him throughout eternity.
Sady missed by wife

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whitman Mayo of "Sanford and Son" may be the most reluctant star in television. He didn't seek the lead when Redd Foxx walked off the NBC show early this year. He would like to hand it back to Foxx.

In fact, he didn't even seek the part of Grady. It was thrust on him. He was a sometime actor and a full-time literary agent in New York.

"I came to Los Angeles last July looking for employment for some of the talent I represent," he said. "That's when I was asked to do one 'Sanford and Son.' I'd worked with Ilunga Adell, the story editor, in the theater in New York and he'd written a show he thought I could do.

"I was in Los Angeles 20 minutes with a client, and within 24 hours I was working and my client wasn't. And that led to show after show."

Mayo starred in six of the shows this past season after Foxx walked out in a dispute over money and working conditions. He starred in another three for next season. The show is currently out of production until July 8. A settlement with Foxx is believed near.

"That would certainly be good news for me," said Mayo. "He worked very diligently to get the show where it is. He and those who began the show deserve the credit for it."

Despite Foxx' absence in some of the shows the series has remained very high in the ratings.

On Books And Activities At The Library

If you haven't discovered your Public Library, you're missing a whole world of entertainment and enlightenment. And did you know that it's all free? This is a good week to discover the library. Several interesting titles are being added to the collections plus some great new music.

The McNaughton collection will add seven new books. Richard Lockridge has written a novel for suspense lovers entitled "Death On The Hour." It involves the murder of a TV News Dept. head. Along with the crime, readers are given a view of the pressure on the news media, invasion of privacy, and the acquisitive greed of large conglomerates-all timely topics plotted in an intriguing novel of death and deception.

"The Greek" by Pierre Rey will have you trying to guess "who's who" as you join the wealthy jet set as they play, manipulate for power, and romance in the orbit of the world's wealthiest ship-owning potentate. It's an intriguing novel of dramatic incidents and fascinating characters.

Gothic readers will enjoy Dawn Field's "Luise." This new novel has a touch of historical fiction as events develop against the tableau of the War of 1812. It captures the mood and flavor of a period of tumult in America, but it also gives the gothic fan the ingredients for an exciting romance.

If 'swash and buckle' appeal to you, be sure to check out "Prince Charlie's Bluff" by Donald Thomas. It's an historical novel based upon the Battle of Quebec in 1759, where the British stopped the French attempt to take over the continent. You should enjoy this superbly-told tale.

On the lighter side, try "The Road To Many A Wonder." David Wagoner's latest offering comes close to being American folklore. It's a high-spirited comedy romance of a young couple as they join the Pikes Peak Gold Rush of 1859. It's entertainment in a delightful style.

A funny novel but a charming love story is "Praise The Human Season" by Don Robertson. It's the love story of a married couple in their 70's who take off on an auto trip to find the meaning of life. It's a human book, a tribute to the human spirit. Older readers will share the joy of life as Howard and Anne drive through the Fall Ohio

Oil Nations Meet, Weigh Price Form

Decisions that could change the price of American gasoline and affect the growth of developing countries will be weighed this weekend by a group of nations that control 80 per cent of world oil exports.

Meeting in Quito, Ecuador, beginning Saturday, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) will attempt to decide on common policy and set their prices for crude oil for the next three months.

The meeting could bring to a head policy differences between Saudi Arabia, which favors lowering prices, and other OPEC nations which back some form of price increase.

This difference has been sharpened in recent months by a burgeoning world oil surplus that has weakened prices while world inflation continues largely unchecked.

The OPEC nations posted a four-fold increase in crude oil prices last year and have frozen these prices since.

Posted prices are used to figure the taxes and royalties the producing countries get from international oil companies. They vary with the quality of the oil but a common benchmark is the price of Arabian light crude.

It is posted at $11.65 per 42-gallon barrel, which means the company pays about $7 in taxes. The companies have been getting about $9 on the open market.

The OPEC ministers could increase posted prices, as some tried to in March. They could leave them unchanged. Or they could adopt the Saudi position and lower them.

One other option is to leave the posted price unchanged but increase the tax from the present 55 per cent to about 87 per cent. This was proposed by an OPEC economic commission to "reap the windfall profits" of the Western oil companies.

Oil company officials say either increasing the posted price or increasing the tax would mean eventual higher prices at the gasoline pump. They estimate the tax proposal would add one or two cents a gallon.

Both the United States and the Common Market governments have asked OPEC not to raise taxes, saying that move would result in less aid for poorer nations, unfavorable international trade balances and higher prices for industrial goods.

Much has been written about Marilyn Monroe. In "My Story," for the first time, one gains insight into her life as she personally unfolds her thoughts and feelings. Miss Monroe felt compelled to work on her autobiography to countermand the thousands of words of gossip written by others. If you're a Monroe devotee, you'll want to read this one.

If you were old enough to read the newspapers in 1931, you remember Winnie Ruth Judd and the sensational trunk murders. Perhaps the most continuously fascinating murder case in America, this has now become the subject of a book by Dobkins and Hendricks entitled "Winnie Ruth Judd: The Trunk Murders." Younger readers will recognize Winnie for her many escapes and the headline publicity she received over a 40-year span. It's a fascinating book about a fascinating subject.

The cooks are in for some new mouth-watering recipes. Especially important during the Summer entertaining season is Better Homes and Gardens "Best Buffets." If you prefer trying foreign cookery, you'll like Roland Groom's "The World's 100 Best Recipes." If you're cooking for a diabetic, "Recipes for Diabetics" by Billie Little will help you cook more attractively within the prescribed limits.

Redbook's "Complete Guide To Beauty" will supply all the latest answers with the latest techniques to solve all your beauty problems. Summer brides will want to check their plans in the new "Brides Book of Etiquette" by the Editors of Brides Magazine.

Two new books with a religious theme are "The Seduction Of The Spirit" and "There's A New World Coming."

The first, by Harvey Cox is in part, his own spiritual autobiography. It is lighthearted but it also must be taken seriously. Hal Lindsey is the author of the other offering. It is the author's study of the Book of Revelations and his interpretation of the predictions made over 2000 years ago.

Did you know that the Library has a large collection of records which may be checked out just like a book? Several new albums have just arrived. The Big Band sound is captured on Columbia's "Gene Krupa, his orchestra and Anita O'Day," "The Best of John Williams" is a three-record set which shows this classical guitarist at his finest. Admirers of the more modern sound will like Johnny Winter's "Saints and Sinners." The satirical humor of David Steinberg is displayed on "Booga! Booga!." Pierre Boulez conducts the New York Philharmonic in Bartok's Concerto for Orchestra. "Four Butterflies" by Morton Subotnik is a new release on the Electric Music Box. The show tunes of Cole Porter are on two albums by Michael Legrand and his orchestra.

Three new singles feature Streisand on "The Way We Were," and for country music listeners, Ray Price on "You're The Best Thing That Ever Happened To Me" and Charlie Rich on "Very Special Love Songs." Copland conducts Copland in the ballet "Appalachian Spring," and Donovan gives you rock with a message on "Essence To Essence." The sound track of "The Way We Were" is also in.

Where else can you find so much exciting variety just for the taking? Get the library habit, you'll be glad you did!
